DEMAND STATE PAY FOR NEW SUBWAYS

The State, and not Boston taxpayers, should bear the burden of rapid transit changes proposed for Greater Boston by the State Division of Metropolitan Planning, representative men in Hub districts declared today.

By other well known district leaders it was asserted that the Planning Division has not made full use of available facilities in its proposals for changing over the transit scheme.

In East Boston, for instance, it is claimed the tunnel should be extended to Day square and Orient Heights and for Roxbury and Jamaica Plain the old elevated structure at Castle street should be utilized in connecting an electric line with the New Haven railroad tracks running to Forest Hills, as is being done on the Shawmut Branch to Dorchester.

The planning division urged pub-

2 SOMERVILLE WORKERS BATTLE AGAINST DEATH IN WATERS OF STREAM

North Grafton, Dec. 20.—After killing a man today, a heavily-laden truck plunged ten feet into the Little Quinsigamond River and the two men it carried narrowly escaped by extricating themselves from the car and swimming ashore in seven feet of water.

Alexander Despard, forty-six, was instantly killed by the truck near his home in Grafton street while he was rushing home with medicine for a sick member of the family.

The truck was swerved to one side by its driver, Victor Moctia of Somerville, just too late to avoid hitting Despard. It crashed through a bridge rail and landed on its side in the stream. Leo Trawni of Somerville was with Moctia.

The truck was owned by a Somerville concern and was heading toward Boston at the time of the accident. Dr. Romeo Le Claire, who was at the Despard home, rushed out and helped the truck men ashore and then returned to the road where he found the body of Despard.

NURSE TRAPS SUSPECT, SAVES LIQUOR SUPPLY

The keen hearing of the night nurse at the Strong Hospital in East Boston today saved the hospital's medicinal liquor supply and resulted in the capture of an alleged burglar.

The prisoner gave his name as George W. Sloan, 36, of Winter street, Quincy, said by the police to be a full-blooded American Indian.

Sloan was identified by the hospital authorities as a former employe who had served as janitor for several months two years go.

Miss Mary Stewart, night nurse at the hospital, was attracted by a scraping sound outside a window of the male ward. Investigation, it is alleged, she saw the form of a man outside, vainly seeking to gain entrance.

As she watched, police said, the man walked to a cellar door and pushed it open. At that point the nurse sent in an emergency call to Station 7 and the patrol wagon, with Sergeant Hurley and Patrolmen Kiley, Lascelles and Countie raced to the hospital.

Miss Stewart met the police at the hospital entrance and led them to the basement door. Rushing in, police allege, they found Sloan standing in front of a store-room in which was the hospital supply of liquor, used for medicinal purposes. The lock on the store-room door had been ripped off, police said.

Mellon To Remove Poison From Alcohol

Washington, Dec. 30 (A.P.).—On the theory that more effective prohibition enforcement is bound to drive drinkers to the use of industrial alcohol, Secretary Mellon announced a determination today to eliminate the use of poisons as denaturants.

The decision not to use poisons in dangerous quantities is based on a conviction on the part of Secretary Mellon that complete prohibition enforcement is impossible.

He thinks that as enforcement grows stronger, bootleggers and drinkers will turn to bad alcohol and other substitutes.

He is not willing that the government should poison these substitutes to enforce the law, and believes other concoctions can be placed in them to prevent their use.

Improved prohibition enforcement under the administration of Assistant Secretary Andrews is believed by Mr. Mellon to have resulted in use

ACCUSED GIANT THUG HELD IN $4,000 BAIL

Henry S. Butler, 22, of Walden street, Cambridge, called by the Somerville police the "giant holdup man," was held in $4,000 for the Grand Jury when arraigned today in Somerville Court.

Butler, who stands six feet two inches and weighs 185 pounds, was charged with the larceny of $9 from Mrs. Rosa Goldberg, store proprietor in East Somerville, and attempted larceny from Mary A. Ward, also a store proprietor.

Police charged him with robbery when he arrived at headquarters, after battling violently with Patrolmen Edward C. Butman, Edmund Keane and Driver George Estee, who found him in Washington street, followed by a crowd of the curious, none of whom dared to tackle him, apparently.

For half an hour Washington street was in a panic, with women screaming and fleeing as the giant approached. He made his appearance first in the variety store of Mrs. Mary A. Ward at No. 39. He

'TAX DODGERS' DIG UP $400,000,000 FOR U. S.

Washington, Dec. 30 (A.P.).—While the Treasury refunded $175,000,000 in illegally collected taxes last fiscal year, Secretary Mellon declared today that during the same period it has collected $400,000,000 in additional levies made as a result of mistakes by taxpayers in computing their returns or in failure to make returns.

The bulk of the refunds resulted from regular court orders, the secretary said, and many of them resulted from mistakes by the government in interpreting provisions of the excess profits tax, which is not now in existence.

SALEM SCHOOL BOARD DELAYS DECISION ON 'POISON PEN' LETTERS

The ancient city of Salem throbbed with excitement today over a school board investigation of "poison pen" letters received by Miss Agnes E. Callahan, twenty-eight-year-old local school nurse.

The letters, containing scurrilous attacks on the nurse, were turned over to the school committee by her, the young woman at the same time accusing a prominent Salem educator of being the author.

After an all-night session the committee postponed its investigation early today with the decision to call in another handwriting expert, in addition to the trio already in the case.

Shortly after midnight today, Mayor George J. Bates who is presiding over the investigation, suggested that a vote be taken, but

Citizens' Views Differ on 'L' Tube Extensions

Steam railroads rights of way should be utilized for parallel electric rapid transit lines, and the East Boston tunnel should be extended to Orient Heights, district leaders said today in commenting on recommendations for improved transportation in Greater Boston.

Some representative citizens interviewed favored parts of the [illegible]ropolitan Planning [illegible] [illegible]mendations to [illegible] lead- [illegible] those rejected [illegible] some of the recommendations favored.

The opinions follow:

JAMES E. MAGUIRE, East Boston Board of Trade and editor East Boston Free Press—East Boston people will oppose any further extension of control of the Boston Elevated Company, insofar as it includes certain trustees. It is ridiculous to put such men in charge of a public utility that is supported by the common masses, whom they do not know and for whom they have no consideration. In East Boston they cut off the Lexington street car service, which has been going on for 40 years, and which served 25,000 people. The first thing to do with reference to the East Boston Tunnel is to extend it to Day square and Orient Heights and on to Lynn. The purchase of the Chelsea division of the Eastern Massachusetts Railway Company ought not to be undertaken until the extension is authorized. Under no circumstances should the Chelsea division be purchased until its value is determined by Governor Fuller and Mayor Nichols, acting in the public interest.

DR. JAMES A. MANSFIELD of No. 42 Hancock street, Dorchester; member of the Mount Pleasant Improvement Association, Roxbury:—Why saddle the expense on [illegible] taxpayers? Why not have this tremendous burden paid by the State? Who is going to benefit by the suggestions offered by the Planning Board? Isn't it a fact that a great many of the people who work in the big stores and offices in town and use the railways, some [illegible] the [illegible] property owners in Boston.

I don't think the Planning Board was very far-visioned. We have on the fringe of the city, all around us, railroad tracks and plenty of space. We could take the elevated structure on Castle street as it emerges and connect it with the railroad tracks going out to Forest Hills. They are doing it on the Shawmut branch in Dorchester. Think of the great saving that would mean. Take the subway, extend it to the Strandway, tunnel under Dudley street from a point near the Strandway to Roxbury Crossing, and connect there with the New Haven road, in and out.

Some of those from outlying sections come for a terminal to the South Station. I wonder if the people forget that when the South Station was built, the commission at that time was said to be far-visioned in having in mind that some day the underneath part, built for a subway station, could be utilized for subway trains. That has been entirely forgotten, yet the station is there—idle.

lic control extension for another forty or fifty years in a comprehensive reports submitted to the Legislature and embracing 166 pages and seventeen charts and maps.

The board also urges reorganization of the company with 5 per cent. common stock and 4½ per cent. preferred stock guaranteed by the Commonwealth, and immediate construction of rapid transit routes to Brighton and Roxbury at an estimated cost of $15,000,000.

The Roxbury extension would be a continuation of the Tremont street subway to Tremont street and Huntington avenue, Roxbury, and operation of rapid transit trains from Lechmere square, East Cambridge.

ELECTRIFIED RAILROADS.

The Brighton extension would be continuation of East Boston tunnel through the present Boylston street subway to Warren street and Commonwealth avenue, Brighton, and operation of trains from Maverick square, East Boston.

In addition plans are outlined for rapid transit extensions in all parts of the Metropolitan area. Electrification of steam railroads entering the city is urged as a prompt beginning.

The report recognizes the importance of bus service, now carrying 10 per cent. of the Elevated Company's passengers. Recommended also are conversion of the Atlantic avenue elevated loop into an elevated highway for trucks and heavy teaming, the removal of elevated structures on Beach street, Harrison avenue and Castle street.

Assessment of three-tenths of the $15,000,000 for extension of rapid transit to Brighton and Roxbury upon private real estate benefitted, as determined by a commission to be named by the Governor or Supreme Court, and covering a long term of years, is recommended.

Principal Points in Great Transit Plan

HERE are the principal recommendations of the Metropolitan Planning Board to improve transit and traffic conditions:

Substitution of trains, with underpasses, for surface cars in all subways, tunnels, elevated ways and highway reservations, including Beacon street, and Commonwealth and Brighton avenues.

Extension of Tremont street subway to Huntington avenue and Tremont street, Roxbury, (Peter Bent Brigham Hospital).

Extension of East Boston tunnel through present Boylston subway to Commonwealth avenue and Warrren street, Allston.

Taking over of Atlantic avenue elevated structure by city as elevated highway for trucks and drays.

Removal of other elevated structures to adjoining private land and entire removal of elevated structure on B street, Harrison avenue and Castle street.

Operation of electric rapid transit lines parallel to rights of way of present steam roads.

Prohibiting of left turns in Governor square or extending subway under square (at cost of $2,500,000 to $5,000,000) to eliminate traffic congestion.

Electrification of steam railroads in metropolitan area.

Purchase of Chelsea division, Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway, by a newly organized company, the Boston Transit Company, formed to take over Boston Elevated property.

Reduction of dividends to 5 per cent. on common and 4½ on preferred stock, guaranteed by State. Extension of public control 40 or 50 years.

Elimination of congestion in Washington subway by operation of trains on one or one-and-one-half-minute headway instead of present two-minute, permitting handling of 100,000 passengers an hour.

Assessment of three-tenths of the $15,000,000 extension costs on private real estate benefitted, by commission named by Governor or Supreme Court and covering long term of years.

SAYS TRIO HAD FAIR TRIAL

The three doomed carbarn slayers, awaiting execution next week, were given a fair trial and every regard for the legal rights of each was observed by State, judge and jury, declared former Attorney-General Herbert Parker of Lancaster today.

"I have had occasion to examine the records of the case and found it was tried with great deliberation and with every consideration for the protection of the legal rights of the defendants," he said.

Mr. Parker expressed deep sympathy for the families of John J. Devereaux, Edward J. Heinlein and John T. McLaughlin, the condemned men, but pointed out that the verdict in the case would in the future spare many mothers the anguish now suffered by the carbarn mothers.

"It is to be remembered that the laws of Massachusetts provide that every presumption of innocence attaches to an accused person until that presumption is overcome by proof beyond a reasonable doubt," he continued.

"In this trial, the Commonwealth presented its case with strict regard of the rights of each of the defendants and the judge presiding at the trial with the jury conducted the proceedings i nsimilar fashion.

"The trial was remarkable even for Massachusetts where the rights of defendants are scrupulously safeguarded. There appears to be no possibility of error to any human according to the judicial proceedings in this case.

"We pity the families beyond words but it will save many mothers of the future the pangs of grief now suffered by those of the condemned trio."

Carbarn Clemency Committee Plans Radio Appeal

Most grim of all these preparations was the placing of three polished slabs of white in the death chamber. These will be screened from view of the slayers and the electric chair itself will be shrouded in canvas when they pass through the chamber on their way to death-house cells after the holiday.

While refusing to say definitely when the transfer to the death house will takep lace, Warden Hendry said it would not be before Monday. It is believed it will take place that day at an hour when all other inmates are in their cells.

PLANS FOR BROADCAST.

Plans for a dramatic plea to the public over the radio were all but dashed today when two of the big Boston broadcasting stations refused positively to permit such an appeal.

Stations WNAC and WBZ made this refusal. Station WEEI announced that it was asked to permit the appeal at regular advertising rates and replied that it was willing to confer with the clemency committee about the matter.

"I understand that ten minutes of broadcasting can be had at a price of $150, but we have no funds for this purpose," said Frank W. Manning, speaking for the friends of the doomed youths. "Neither have their families any savings left, having spent their all for efforts already made to save the boys."

Manning again trier to see Superintendent of Public Buildings John Englert at City Hall, but found him out. A mass meeting may be held in some private hall, he said, but which one has not been decided.

SHORTAGE OF FUNDS.

Shortage of funds ,according to Manning, is the hinderance now blocking a mass meeting in any private building the hall of which would have to be paid for.

The slayers, John J. Devereaux, called "Joe" by his folks, Edward J. [illegible] and John J. McLaughlin, spent the day writing letters, reading and in prayer. Devereaux, who admitted the shooting of the Waltham carbarn watchman and tried to save his companions, is the calmest of all.

He is a profound reader in "weighty" subjects, notably psychology. Another of his favorites is de Maupassant, famous French master of the short story art. Heinlien, too, reads much lighter material and is cheerful, especially when his folks visit him as they did today.

McLaughlin is deeply religious and according to his mother is "a changed boy, not at all like he used to be." Both he and Deveraux have little to say to their guards all day long.

The purpose of the proposed radio appeal, according to Frank Manning, is to acquaint the public with the fact that Devereaux did the shooting, not the others, and that Deveraux is of inferior mentality, according to government records.

FATHER SADDEST OF ALL.

Saddest figure of all as the dreaded hour draws near is the father of "Joe" Deveraux who told today how, as a State Prison guard, he brought his two boys and showed them the death chamber, warning them to beware of evil society.

"'You were right, Dad,' Joe said to me the day after Christmas when I visited him," said the elder Devereaux. "That moved me more than anything else ever has.

"I was a State Prison guard not so very long ago, and I warned my boys of th edangers of wrong-doing, as showed them through the very room in which 'Joe' may be executed next week.

"He was a good boy until he got into evil society. He went to New York a fe wyears ago to work in the Post Office and I think it was then he changed somewhat. It is all the more pitiful, though, that he was not rightly balanced when he committed this crime.

GIRL SAYS RIDE ENDED WITH 'MARRIAGE'

A marriage ceremony of dubious validity figured in the story told by Miss Maude E. Hingley, 18, of Buena Vista road, North Cambridge, that resulted in the arrest of Harry H. Lord of West Newton street, Boston, alleged father of two children, on a charge of abduction.

Lord was held in bonds of $1,000 when he was arraigned in the East Cambridge court this morning on a continuance until Jan. 17.

On Nov. 29, according to Miss Hingley's story to Captain Patrick J. Harley, Lord, posing under the name of "Richford," called at her home and invited her for an automobile ride.

She agreed to go with him, she stated, and they started for Lexington for the expressed purpose of picking apples. Enroute Lord is alleged to have professed his love for the 18-year-old girl and proposed marriage.

She agreed, she told police, and they decided to become man and wife that day. Accordingly they went to the home of Frank Kearns in East Pepperell, police assert, where, after a secret conference between Lord and Kearns, the latter performed a marriage ceremony.

Believing that she was the rightfully wedded wife of the man, Miss Hingley, she told police, went with Lord to a Boston hotel, where they lived as man and wife for several days.

Yesterday the American and Advertiser gained 959 classified ads over the corresponding day of last year.

EX-PASTOR TO FACE COURT IN HUB MONDAY

Guy Willis Holmes, ex-pastor of a New Bedford Methodist Episcopal Church, will ask for a bill of specifications when he appears Monday for arraignment in Superior Court at Boston on charges preferred by Miss Antoinette Fortin, 19-year-old tea-room girl.

The unfrocked minister had been an alleged fugitive from justice until yesterday when he was arraigned in East Greenwich, R. I., on the charge and was released in $700 bail.

Today his senior counsel, Henry E. Woodward, declared, in New Bedford, that he will produce his client in Boston Monday when a bill of particularly will be asked.

The former pastor was arrested at Kingston, R. I., after Boston police learned he apparently had recovered completely from the ill-health which prevented his answering the charges shortly after the indictments were returned.

Holmes was unfrocked as a minister and deprived of his privileges as a layman by the New England Southern Methodist Conference after Miss Fortin had charged misconduct and violation of the true name law in a Boston hotel.

After the tea room girl's story was told last Spring Holmes went through a long trial before church authorities. He insisted the charges against him were false and protested his innocence. But the church heads found against him.

Holmes then went through a period of ill health, his physician, Dr. F. G. Fenwick, of East Greenwich, R. I., asserting he was physically unable to answer the charges. The warrants remained in the office of District Attorney O'Brien until it was learned Holmes had recovered.

Churches, hospitals, priests, nuns and charitable institutions are remembered in the will of Mrs. Agnes M. Cloney of Brookline, filed today for probate in Norfolk Probate Court at Dedham.

One paragraph in the will referring to her brother, Thomas M. Dowsley, says: "In lieu of any legacy I remit to him his indebtedness to me."

To a sister, Philomena M. Dowsley, however, $2,000 is left, with the suggestion that if she does not need the money she turn it over to the children of the brother.

The Mission Church in Roxbury and the Church of Notre Dame des Victories (the French Church) in Boston are left $1,000 each, and the same sum is given the Carney Hospital.

Two trust funds of $1,500 each, one at Holy Cross College and the other at Notre Dame Academy in Roxbury, are left for the education of her nephew, Robert Dowsley, and her niece, Dorothy Dowsley.

The Society for the Propagation of the Faith and the Roman Catholic Clergymen of Maryland are left $1,000 each, with bequests of $500 each to the Little Sisters of the Poor in Roxbury, the Boston Floating Hospital and Home for Destitute Catholic Children.

BOY, 3, ESCAPES DEATH FROM POISON RUM

Three-year-old Michael Norton, Jr., of No. 70 Baxter street, South Boston, youngest poison liquor victim ever admitted to the City Hospital, is gradually recovering from the effects of a large quantity of poisonous moonshine, which he drank from a bottle left on the kitchen table.

His five-year-old sister, Barbara, who also drank some of the liquor, is being treated at her home.

According to the police, the boy found the bottle and drank a large quantity of the fluid before his mother learned what he was up to. He was unconscious on the floor when Mrs. Norton found him and was taken at once to the City Hospital. His name is on the danger list.

The moonshine, the police say, is the product of a blind tiger in the neighborhood, and Captain John Murphy of the Athens street station ordered his liquor squad to rid the district of this place.

Mrs. Norton, the child's mother, told physicians that the liquor was purchased by a member of the family who was suffering from a cold and it was left carelessly on the kitchen table.

INCREASE IN DEATHS IN FRANCE DUE TO WAR

Paris, Dec 30. (AP.)—France suffered 25,592 more deaths in 1925 than in 1924, the latest census figures show, although the mortality of infants under one year of age contributed only slightly over 4 per cent, to the total.

The hygiene department attributes the increase to the consequences of war wounds and exposures and the fact that 1,500,000 men perished on the battlefields from 1914 to 1918, leaving an unusual proportion of old people among the population. Paris appears to have been fairly healthy in comparison with the rest of France, with 42,790 deaths in 1925 as against 41,639 in 1924.

CALLS IT CRIME TO PUT POISON IN 'ALKY'

Senator James A. Reed of Missouri, fighting foe of hokum and hypocrisy, was requested by the New York American to express his views on government poisoning of liquor. Here is his telegraphic reply:

By JAMES A. REED.

Kansas City, Dec. 30.—Something like two years ago I developed in a hearing before committee of the Senate that something like ten million gallons of alcohol which had been treated with various kinds of poison were being consumed for beverage purposes, and that injurious results and many deaths resulted.

At that time I challenged the policy of killing or greatly injuring people in an effort to enforce a prohibitory law, the object of which was to prevent injury through alcoholic liquors.

Since that time very persuasive evidence has been offered by the District Attorney at New York city to the effect that 60,000,000 gallons of denatured alcohol are, after re-distillation, sold for beverage purposes.

DANGER OF DEATH.

Other evidence taken in the hearings shows that it is impossible, totally to remove all poisonous substances, and that the use of this vast quantity of alcohol, which has been poisoned by the government results in permanent injury to health and in some cases in death or great physical disability.

I have taken the position continuously, and, it is now my opinion that, as the sole purpose of prohibition was to protect the life, health and morals of the people, when the government puts poison into alcohol a large percentage of which the government officers know will ultimately be consumed for beverage purposes, such action by the government is reprehensible and tends to defeat the very purpose of prohibition, namely, the conservation of life and health.

CALLS IT A CRIME.

Indeed, it seems to me that he who puts poison in any liquid or food knowing at the time that a large percentage of the poisoned article will be consumed by people, has himself been guilty of a crime.

It is no answer to say that the sale or drinking of intoxicating liquor is unlawful, that therefore, he who drinks ought to suffer the consequences, because it has always been true that any man who became a drunkard did so in violation of the law. Nevertheless the good people of the land did not say that the drunkard must perish, but adopted prohibition as a means for his physical salvation.

When, therefore, the government, in enforcing the prohibitory law, uses means which will produce death or the loss of health, it is bringing on the very evil to prevent which the prohibitory laws were enacted.

ONE WAY TO STOP IT.

Only one possessing the instincts of a wild beast would desire to kill or render blind the man who takes a drink of liquor, even though he purchased it from one violating the prohibitory statutes. In his examination before the Senate committee General Andrews substantially admitted that with a reasonable number of inspectors located at the various institutions authorized to use alcoholic liquors for manufacturing purposes the escape of liquor for beverage purposes could be practically stopped.

This being true, there is no excuse for poisoning the liquor, a large percentage of which is afterward found to be sold to unsuspecting people.

JUST PLAIN MURDER.

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, denouncing the government's policy in denaturing liquor, said:

"Murder! Just plain, unadulterated murder by our glorious paternal government, is what I think of the deaths attributed to consumption of liquor manufactured from poisoned alcohol.

"Let it go. Why stop it? The more victims of governmental murder, the better the government, I suppose. To a government which has undertaken to do what has already been done in this tragedy of prohibition a few more murders mean nothing."

Yale Savant Says Poisoned Alcohol 'Disgraces Nation'

New Haven, Ct., Dec. 30 (A.P.)—Professor Charles M. Bakewell of Yale University, former State Senator, speaking at a testimonial dinner to State Senator-elect Joseph V. Esposito, said he was "shocked and horrified at the government poisoning alcohol, hoping to kill those who do not agree with the minority or at best a small ma[illegible]"

That the United States operated a speakeasy and "has become itself a criminal," Professor Bakewell declared was a "blot on the escutcheon" of the nation.

He hoped all true Americans would agree with him that these actions were a "disgrace" and "fearlessly express themselves in the cause of righteousness."

POISON BOOZE KILLS 2,897 DURING YEAR

New York, Dec. 30.—Indications today were that the death toll in New York city from liquor this year would exceed 800, including thirty four since the Christmas holidays. Total deaths throughout the country have been placed at 2,897 to date.

Health Commissioner Harris of New York city has announced 724 deaths from alcoholism for the first fifty-one weeks of the year, a figure which he said represented more than twice as many deaths from alcoholism as in the whole of wet England and Wales, with a population of 38,000,000 and nearly four times as many as in wet Australia, with a population about equal to that of this city.

The total alcoholic deaths in New York so far this year, according to health department figures is greater than any year since 191[illegible] the next highest year being 1916 when 687 deaths were recorded. Last year's total was 513.

DEATH ZONE IS WIDE.

Reports to New York newspapers from other cities indicated that the victims of bad liquor were not confined to this city alone. Unofficially 898 deaths already have been reported in New York State, with Chicago ranking second with 328 deaths. Chicago reported seven deaths from alcohol since the Christmas holidays.

In Philadelphia, Coroner Frederick Schwartz, Jr., said that while only 150 deaths from alcohol were shown by official records during the year he had evidence that at least 150 more died from that cause.

Boston reported 145 deaths traceable to alcohol, 30 less than the total for 1925. St. Louis officially reported 56 deaths, as compared to 32 in 1925 and Detroit 121.

Other cities reporting high liquor death rates for the year were Pittsburgh, with 130, Baltimore 71, Los Angeles 20, Minneapolis 28, Seattle 23, Cincinnati 43, Columbus 8 and Omaha 10.

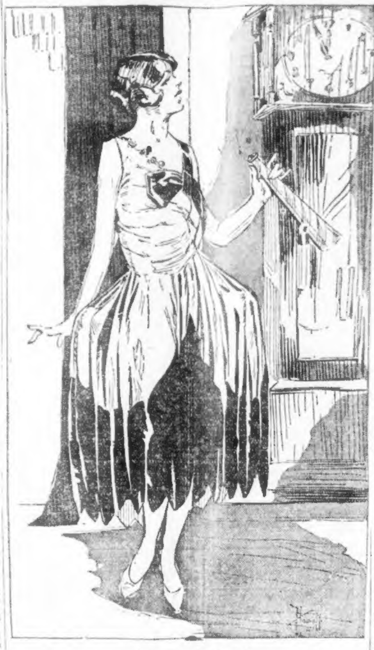
SCORES GOVERNMENT.

No comment was forthcoming from prohibition officials here on government plans for substitution of a harmless denaturant in place of wood alcohol.

Orville S. Poland, head of the legal department of the State Anti-Saloon League, offered the services of his organization to relatives of persons dying from alcohol poisoning with the aim of securing legal redress for them from bootleggers.

Senator James A. Reed of Missouri, in a telegram to the New York American today, criticizes the government for poisoning of alcohol and says that "only one possessing the insticts of a wild beast would desire to kill or render blind the man who takes a drink of liquor, even though he purchased it from one violating the prohibitory statutes."

HOWELL IN BOSTON SHOPS



Chic Party Frock

Three of the newer fashion enticements characterize this period taffeta frock which is the chic mode of the moment in party raiment for the debutante home from school or the miss engrossed in seasonal merrymaking.

The neckline is the new Chanel diagonal.

The color combination is the latest in vivid two tone contrast.

The hemline is uneven, lower in back than in front.

The colors of the model sketched are an eyetaking blend of white and cerise.

French flowers, handmade, emphasize the diagonal neckline, which is further strikingly accentuated by flaring cerise bow with flowing ends.

of industrial alcohol by bootleggers and in the consequent poisoning of some drinkers.

He does not believe that any proportion of the numerous holiday alcoholic deaths resulted from use of poison alcohol, and believes excessive drinking was a more likely cause.

The secretary declared today that smuggling both along the coast and on the Canadian border has been greatly diminished, if not almost eliminated.

Domestic liquor leaks also have been stopped to a great degree, he said, through the concentration in fewer distilleries of the medicinal liquor stock. As a result, bootleggers, he understands, are turning to use of industrial alcohol.

Democrats Renew Fight for Cut in Taxes

Washington, Dec. 30 (I.N.S.).—Asserting that the Federal government will collect a half billion dollars from taxpayers during the present fiscal year more than is needed to run the government, Rep. Oldfield, of Arkansas, the Democratic whip, today announced the Democratic drive for tax reduction legislation will be renewed.

Circulation of a petition asking discharge of the House Ways and Means Committee, which refused to take up tax reduction bills, will be started, he said. Many Republicans, Oldfield claimed, have indicated they would sign.

ENGINEER IS KILLED, FEAR FIREMAN DEAD

Rummerfield, Pa., Dec. 30 (A.P.). —An engineer was killed and his fireman is believed to be dead under the wreckage as the result of one freight train running into the rear of another on the Lehigh Valley Railroad here today. The engineer was John Johnson, driver of a fast freight running between Jersey City and Buffalo. His fireman is Michael Langan, a junior at Lafayette College.

2 STILLS SEIZED ON E. BOSTON WHARF

Two huge stills, capable of turning out 2,500 gallons of "hootch" per day, were seized today in what was thought to have been a deserted building located at the end of a wharf in Border street, East Boston.

That the building was deserted as far as human beings were concerned was the discovery of Sergeant Augustus Barthol and Patrolmen Thomas Duggan and John Henneberry of the liquor squad attached to Station 7, East Boston, who conducted the seizure.

One of the stills has a capacity of 250 gallons and the other 10 gallons. In addition, police seize six oil pressure heaters, five o burners, thirteen barrels of mas forty empty cans and considerab paraphernalia.

The building belongs to a reput ble East Boston firm, which is n suspected of having participated i the manufacture of the illic liquor, police said.

Board Delays Finding in Salem's 'Poison Pen' Case

this was oposed by Committeeman Cloutman, who retires from office shortly. Mr. Cloutman declared he needed more handwriting testimony, and it was decided to call the best talent obtainable in New England, to be paid by the city.

THREATS IN LETTERS.

"You contemptible cur," "Children and teachers are tired of seeing your mug," "Beat it quick," "The cheap school board backs you up, you brazen thing," are some of the phrases used by the anonymous writer in the letters received by Miss Callahan.

They also threatened her with bodily injury if she did not resign, according to her counsel, Attorney Charles L. Green, who submitted them to the board as exhibits.

Although the letters were received by the nurse more than a year ago, during the period between March and August in 1925, charges were not made by her until two weeks ago.

At the time the communications were received, Miss Callahan, according to her story, took them to Principal James J. Murray of the Phillips School, Salem, with whom she was on friendly terms.

Principal Murray said today he took Miss Callahan to the district attorney's office and Inspector Murray was assigned to the case. The principal said he understood the district attorney's office had dropped the case since, and refused to discuss the matter further referring questioners to his counsel, Judge Harry Jackson.

Judge Jackson, when questioned, refused to discuss the case in any way.

"I have nothing to say," he said. "I will not break confidence with the school board. I am pledged to secrecy. I will take up no issue whatever."

In the meantime Miss Callahan laid the matter before the school board, together with her suspicions, and handwriting experts were called in. The handwriting of various suspects was compared, and the testimony and arguments were heard in four star chamber sessions.

MAYOR ASKS SECRECY.

When Mayor Bates was asked why the hearing was secret, he replied:

"I do not wish to have the affairs of the school department dragged in the mud, so I have advised everyone concerned to discuss the charges with no one.'

The members of the school committee are Thomas L. Cronan, Fred J. Cloutman, John J. McCarthy, John M. Gray, Leo H. Tracey and James Kinsella.

Miss Callahan received her education in the Salem schools and trained to be a nurse at the Carney Hospital, Boston. She has been connected with the school department since 1920, during which time the young woman has received several raises in salary.

It is said that a certain educator entertained a sentimental affection for Miss Callahan, which was not returned. Letters breathing deep sentiment were reported to have been submitted by Miss Callahan to the board, these letters having been written by the educator.

FIRST 5 YEARS MOST VITAL IN TRAINING A CHILD

New Haven, Ct., Dec. 30 (A.P.).—The development of a child during the first five years of his life is more important, with reference to his mental condition in later years, than any other equal period between the ages of five and twenty-four, in the opinion of Prof. Arnold Gesell, director of psycho-clinic at Yale University, who today told of experimental work being conducted at Yale.

Red blocks are used in one test of the reaction of the child at ten different age levels.

At the age of one month, Prof Gezell pointed out, the child does not heed the blocks. At three months he gives slight attention to them. At six months he will take hold of one. At nine months he is able to give attention sufficiently long to take hold of two blocks.

At twelve months with two blocks in his hands, he will endeavor to take hold of a third with his teeth.

At eighteen months he is able to erect a column of several blocks one on top of the other. At two years he can take three blocks and make a bridge.

At three, four and five years of age he is able to do tasks requiring greater skill and concentration with the blocks.

'higher critics' to make us ashamed of the Puritan fathers, but they have forgotten that the Puritan virtues made the most prosperous nation in the world out of a wilderness.

"The South advertises its advantages, but the advantages can be only temporary. Wages in the South must inevitably rise and the working week grow shorter. The South cannot become the new South of great industry and enlightened labor and new prosperity and at the same time remain the old South.

N. E. "OLD HOMESTEAD."

"New England is the old homestead of American industry and American industry will not come back to the old homestead unless it is all painted up bright and new and has tiled bathrooms and a superheterodyne in what used to be called the parlor. Could not the North overcome handicaps by using labor more efficiently, giving it better machinery and by better management?

"New England and the cotton industry constitute only one example of a great new competitive era. And with this new competition perhaps will come a new economic statesmanship. We need men who can see the new competition and beyond it into the new co-operation, men to whom imaginary boundaries are not impenetrable walls."

CHILD DEATHS BY AUTOS STIR GOODWIN

Little children, 234 of them, were killed by automobiles on the highways in Massachusetts during 1926. In addition to this there were 6,599 seriously injured.

In bringing these facts to light today, Registrar Frank A. Goodwin asks:

"How many drivers, rushing through the streets day after day as if their last moment had arrived, ever stop to think of the sorrow and the suffering brought into the homes and hearts of the fathers and mothers of all these little children?

WAS "MY LITTLE GIRL."

"Constant admonitions," he says, "like the cry of 'Wolf! Wolf!' become disregarded but now and then a concrete illustration becomes far more effective than words. Recently there was called to my attention a little article which I think at the beginning of this New Year, it is well to pass along.

"Here it is:"

"Today It Was My Little Girl"

A wave of the hand, a kiss blown on the breeze—from the sweetest little pal in the world.

I stood for some moments watching her, a chubby little figure in blue and white, an extremely important little person on her way to school.

And then she turned the corner. It must have been about four o'clock—my mind has been sort of deadened since—that the boss sent for me. "Bob," said he, laying his hand on my shoulder, "there's been an accident and you'd better hurry up to the house."

PASSED OUT FOREVER.

Well, there isn't much more to tell. That little pal of mine—she—she wasn't at the window watching for me as usual. For an instant I faltered, it just seemed as though something within me went dead, and I had to fight hard for breath.

In a little time I went out to the gate, just as I had that very morning. And I looked down the street as best I could. Right over there, a short block away, was where she turned the corner—passed forever out of my life.

Today, it was my little girl. Tomorrow or next day, it will be some other little pal quite as dear. And so on, and on, until the conscience of men shall cry a halt to this wild passion for fast driving in localities where danger, obvious danger, stares drivers plumb in the eye.

Wouldn't it be wonderful if in the year 1927 every driver of motor vehicles would memorize this little story, and think of it every time he drives his automobile through the crowded streets? Goodwin commented.

WORKMAN NEAR DEATH IN GASOLINE EXPLOSION

Worcester, Dec. 30.—A flash of flame from a gasoline explosion seared the body, arms and legs of Michael Makynen of Spencer in the American Steel and Wire Company plant today and he is on the danger list at Memorial Hospital. The workman wore a gasoline-stained apron, and when a gasoline container exploded from an undetermined cause, knocking him down, he was a mass of flames in an instant.

Other workmen ran to his aid and extinguished his flaming clothing by rolling him in overcoats and overalls. Makynen is 39 and the father of three children. The fire department was summoned to put out a slight fire the explosion caused.

MEXICAN REPLY ALARMS U. S. OIL MEN

New York, Dec. 30 (A.P.)—A meeting of the Association of Producers of Petroleum in Mexico has been called for this afternoon to take action on the refusal of President Calles of Mexico to grant an extension of time on the new oil regulations which go into effect January 1.

A telegram from Calles announcing the Mexican government's decision was received today at the headquarters of the association, and was turned over to experts for translation.

It was plainly evident that oil men were disappointed that their plea for a delay had been rejected.

MEETINGS CALLED.

Officials of the Pan-American Petroleum & Transport Company discussed the situation at a special meeting.

Conferences also took place among the officials of other large Mexican producers, but it was indicated that all public statements would be made through the association.

Daily conferences have been held by members of the association the past two weeks, in an endeavor to decide on action to be taken by the American oil interests. The plea for an extension of time to bring about amendments to the law guaranteeing property rights acquired before 1917 resulted from the meetings.

The American oil interests had refused to comply with the new law on the contention that it amounts to confiscation rather than a confirmation of their rights, and that it is merely a new attempt to put into force the constitution of 1917, which declares all subsoil petroleum deposits "vested in the nation."

Members of the association claim to control 85 per cent of the petroleum industry in Mexico, and the capital involved is estimated at from a half to three-quarters of a billion dollars.

Says Relativity Theory Leads to Real Religion

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 30 (A.P.)—The theory of relativity and the fourth dimension "open the way to a comprehension of God and to a merger of science and religion," Dr. Filmer Northrup, professor of philosophy at Yale, believes.

"Science is entirely ineffective in the explanation of the universe," he told the National Student Conference. "Its bases are mass and energy, both of which are perpetually changing.

"The theory of relativity does, however, give humanity a weapon with which to solve existence and God in terms that never change. When people grasp this theory and the fourth dimension, both requiring transcendental reasoning, they will have come close to the secret of the universe."

D'ALESANDRO DEEDED HOME TO WOMAN

Dominick D'Alesandro, president of the Hod Carriers' Union, before he died and while he was making his will expressed fear that his secretary, Ethel M. Housman, might be ejected from his Quincy house, Vincent Brogna testified in Norfolk Probate Court today.

Brogna, a Boston lawyer and D'Alesandro's attorney, was one of the first witnesses in the contest of the labor man's will, begun by the widow Philomena, who was cut off with an annuity of $500.

To his secretary, Miss Housman, the labor union president left the bulk of his estate, but before his death he installed her in his Quincy house which he deeded to her, according to Atty. Brogna.

Mrs. D'Alesandro charges Miss Housman and Brogna with undue influence, and the widow alleges also that the will bequeathing most of the estate to the secretary is a forgery. Judge Joseph R. McCoole is hearing the evidence.

Brogna testified today that he drew the will at D'Alesandro's request and in his presence and that at the time D'Alesandro said that he feared his brothers and relatives might attempt to throw Miss Housman out of the house he had deeded to her.

'RIO RITA' WINS FIRST NIGHT AUDIENCE

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

WHENEVER and how—indicating merely a lapse of time and expense—Florenz Ziegfeld indulges in artistic revelry, prodigality is the watchward. With little more than routine mention, Mr. Ziegfeld last night turned the Colonial into a producing theatre for Broadway fare; piled scene upon scene; tripped actor over actor, and in other ways fashioned a musical comedy honestly and fairly beyond the comprehension of the tired business man who thinks a show with songs is something made up of girls, lingerie and bad music.

Ada-May.

These things found their way into "Rio Rita," of course, but only as simple incidentals to the most pretentious and luxuriously produced musical comedy Boylston street has housed for many moons. There was much fluff and lingerie, naturally; also there were touches of burlesque and rare moments of low comedy. But over the stretch of a very lively evening these items found only negative measure. "Rio Rita" was another "Rose Marie," substituting the more romantic and passionate Mexican border for the frigid barriers of the Canadian frontier. In every instance the open, flowing purse of Ziegfeld attested faithfully to the real value of theatrical munificence. Names by the score and scenery in carload lots crowded the show, and if these were not enough one might safely check up on the costuming and gather new warmth in the matter of reckless spending.

No twiddling hesitations hampered the movement of "Rio Rita" from curtain to curtain. The beauty, charm and intriguing artistry of Ethelind Terry ran riot with an enthusiastic first night audience; she was Spanish to the core, with a first class Mexican dialect and a gift of making song numbers hop nimbly from stage to auditorium.

But even Miss Terry had rivalry in song and personality. J. Harold Murray raised a rich baritone note that stirred things considerably in the conventional heroics falling upon the sweet-voiced leading man.

Ada-May, blithesome and gay, with a pair of dancing feet not excelled in these dire days, held hands with Bert Wheeler in what you might call a better brand of comedy.

In a free moment you might also mention Robert Woolsey, an amusing chap, and Vincent Serrano, whose artistic past has been involved in more noble things than musical comedy. These, and a score of others, carried the heavy burden, though none of the leading personnel toiled more earnestly or with better result than the long, unlisted units comprising Mr. Ziegfeld's rank and file.

"Rio Rita," taken in any view, was musical comedy lifted to higher rank than the theatre usually dares risk upon a fickle public; it was an entertainment in which ordinary business economies were boldly discarded for stirring ensembles and inspiring finales.

demanded in a fierce tone that Mrs. Ward give him what money she had.

Tremblingly she told him she had only fifty cents.

"Give me that," he demanded, and she did.

Next he entered the store of Mrs. Alice O'Keefe at No. 61. On his demand for money Mrs. O'Keefe ran, screaming, out of the store. She returned with a group of young men, but they let the giant pass on.

TRUCK CRASHES INTO FIRE BOX AND CAUSES ALARM

Martin Gavin, driver of a large mail truck owned by M. J. Lynch, had plenty of assistance getting his truck freed after it skidded on the ice and crashed into the fire alarm box at Sixth street and Thomas Park, South Boston, early today.

When the truck hit the fire alarm box, the latter snapped off short. Gavin wasn't injured nor was the truck damaged greatly. But before Gavin could back the truck into the street, five pieces of fire apparatus, a district chief in his car, a police patrol and a flock of policemen arrived. When the alarm box snapped it sent in a fire alarm.

PHILOMATHEIA CLUB COMMITTEE TO MEET

The women's committee for the annual ball of the Philomatheia Club of Boston College will be entertained at the club house Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock by Mrs. Charles J. O'Malley, chairman. About 3 000 tickets have already been assigned for the ball which will take place at the new Elks Club, Tremont street, January 14. Mrs. V. P. Roberts, president of the club, who is now in California, will return in time for the festivities.

N. E. MAKES ITS PLEA FOR SHIPS TO SAVE TRADE

By FRED TOYE,
Staff Correspondent of the Boston Evening American.

Washington, Dec. 30.—Damage to New England industry through delays of two or three months in the shipment of products to and from South America through the port of New York was urged by Captain Eugene O'Donnell of Boston as the most pressing reason for the allocation of twelve cargo vessels of the American Republic Line to Boston at today's hearing before the U. S. Shipping Board.

Representatives of New England's railroads, banking houses and 2,000 industries attended the hearing at which arguments were heard by the board urging the transfer of the service from New York to Boston control.

Prominent in the group was Mrs. Edith N. Rogers, Massachusetts Congresswoman, who has been urging upon the government the transfer of the line to Boston.

HUB LOGICAL PORT.

Captain O'Donnell, who is general manager of C. H. Sprague & Sons, Inc., was the first speaker to address the board, which was presided over by Chairman T. V. O'Connor. Captain O'Donnell said:

"We have here today representatives of all the railroads of New England, two thousand of her industries, the principal financial interests and the shipping concern in whose control it is proposed to place the line, C. H. Sprague & Sons, Inc."

P. J. Dodd of Holyoke, chairman of the transportation committee of the Associated Industries of Massachusetts, said his association felt that Boston was the logical terminal for the majority of South American shipments.

"Our industries are looking more and more to South America," he declared. "Allocation of this line to Boston will foster this tendency and our industries will give it hearty support. The proposed service will stimulate New England industries and production through quicker transit facilities afforded.'"

LONG DELAYS CITED.

Down pointed out that the majority of New England shipments are diverted to New York because of lack of competitive service in Boston and virtual control of rates by foreign shipping interests.

It frequently happens that after a vessel receives a cargo at Boston for South American ports it is tied up for 70 to 90 days in New York, he said. Consequently it has become necessary for Boston to refuse all freight except slow-moving cargoes, such as lumber.

Vice-Chairman E. C. Plummer of the Shipping Board called attention to complaints of Portland shippers that space on boats was not available for their needs because of New York taking most of the available cargo space.

George L. Graham, representing the National Association of Woolen and Worsted Manufacturers of the United States, said the United States uses 600,000,000 pounds of wool a year. One-half of the wood is imported. Seventy per cent. of the wool is used in New England to manufacture woolens and worsteds.

WOOL MEN PLEDGE AID.

"Most of the wool is moved in foreign ships," he said. "Rates are made in Europe and we have no knowledge of how the rates are made. We believe that New England should control these shipments, which arel argely in Winter months. It is necessary for us to fish our cargo from under foreign cargoes in the ships now carrying them.

"I am satisfied that foreign lines are still using the rebate system. If we have American flag vessels we can break up this system, which is costing American shippers what amounts to a surcharge of 10 per cent."

Chairman O'Connor asked whether American woolen manufacturers would insist upon their shippers using American bottoms if the bottoms were supplied.

Graham pledged the loyal support of the manufacturers.

"When wool comes through New York it is subject to charges of which New England shippers have no exact knowledge," he said.

RAILROADS BACK HUB.

C. W. Boynton, foreign freight agent of the Boston & Maine, said the road was prepared to arrange for special representatives throughout the country to solicit freight for the proposed line. Heretofore such solicitation has been half-hearted because Boston lacked efficient direct and regular service.

Frederick T. Smith, representing the N. Y., N. H. & H. Railroad, called attention to terminal facilities, including the Army Base and Commonwealth Pier and two of its own piers with more than nine miles of dockage. The road is anxious to build up the port of Boston and will use its facilities and agencies to route freight through Boston, he said.

William R. Hedge, president of the Boston Insurance Company, called attention to great losses to New England shippers through New York through breakage and theft in trans-shipment. He said shippers prefer direct routing from Boston.

"A square deal is all that New England wants," he said. "We have the complete triangle of manufacturers, banker and market—what we lack is transportation. Boston is the one city of the United States that is closely tied up with Buenos Aires through years of friendship."

NEW YORK RATES HIGH.

Charles H. Lawrence of the United Shoe Machinery Corporation said 1,350 tons of shoe machinery went through Boston in a year as against 7,500 tons through New York to South America and it was necessary to use foreign ships. Out of eleven shipments only one went in an American ship.

Lawrence stated that New York cartage rates are twice the Boston charges and there is an additional freight rate of 66 cents a hundred on goods shipped via New York.

Messages were read from the New England Council, New England Shoe and Leather Association, Plymouth Cordage Company, Dwinell-Wright & Company and Chase & Sanborn, urging operation of the line be put in the hands of Boston interests.

William J. Fortune of the National Shawmut Bank said his bank felt New England's natural outlook was toward South America. Particularly, he said, the textile industry doing a $150,000,000 business a year, and the shoe and leather industry doing $250,000,000 business a year, were vitally interested in South America.

HORSE ON BRIDGE TIES UP B. & A. TRAFFIC

Springfield, Dec. 30 (A.P.).—Because a horse wandered out on the Boston & Albany Railroad bridge that spans the Connecticut River and there fell and broke its leg, eastbound main line traffic had to be detoured to the westbound side of the bridge for a considerable time today while a wrecking crew was removing the carcass of the horse.

Agent T. W. Pearson of the S. P. C. A., finding it practically impossible to extricate the horse, ended its life with a bullet.

VILLAGE BUILT ON 40 ACRES FOR FILM

More than 40 acres of ground were used for the reproduction of a stockaded Canadian village at the mouth of Laurel Canyon, in the Hollywood foothills, for the filming of battle scenes in "The Flaming Forest," new film featuring Renee Adoree and Antonio Moreno, which opens Monday at Loew's State.

The village, which was more than a month in the making, is the largest motion picture set of its kind ever constructed and is a faithful reproduction of one of the Canadian villages of the northwest territories in the early seventies, when the Northwest Mounted Police was organized to preserve safety and administer the law in a territory covering 300,000 square miles.

It was at first planned to film the entire production in Canada on the very locales of James Oliver Curwood's thrilling story of adventure on the frontier, but this was partially given up when it was found that all of the historic spots of western Canada have been marred by the advance of civilization.

The Laurel Canyon location was then constructed in a spot which matches the Canadian territory, and Director Barker took his company to Canada and Montana to film the exteriors.

Among the well known members of the cast supporting Miss Adoree and Moreno are: Gardner James, Oscar Beregi, Bert Roach, Claire McDowell, Tom O'Brien, the "Bull" of "The Big Parade"; Charles S. Ogle, Emil Chautard, William Austin, Clarence Geldert, Frank Leigh, Roy Coulson, D'Arcy McCoy and Mary Jane Irving.

13 IDENTIFIED IN RUM PLOT BY U. S. AGENT

Floyd Taylor of Brockton, former prohibition agent and "under cover" man for the government at the alleged huge distillery at North Wilmington, testifying as a government witness today, identified 13 defendants as having taken part, at some time or other, in operations at the Stevens farm.

Taylor, known to the alleged conspirators as "Lincoln" until yesterday, declared he never saw Chief of Police Walter A. Hill of Wilmington, one of the 14 defendants, on the premises, but visited his home in Wilmington once with the defendant Brennan after talk about a raid.

Following a Federal raid on the Wilmington farm, in March, Taylor was held in $1,000 as a material witness. The indictment of Chief Hill and his co-dendants followed the presentation to a Federal Grand Jury of evidence alleged to have been obtained by Taylor while an employe of the distilling plant.

A determined effort by Attorney M. J. Doyle, counsel for Chief Hill, to compel Prohibition Agent Walter A. Sullivan of Lowell to name Peter Dayton of Wilmington as the informer against the police official featured the cross-examination of Sullivan when court resumed today.

Question by Doyle—As far back as March last you suspected Chief Hill was connected with the illicit distillery? A.—Yes.

Q.—Do you know Peter Dayton of Wilmington, a candidate for selectman? A.—Yes.

Q.—Have you ever had any conversations with him about Hill? A.—Yes, several.

Q.—What was the subject of those conversations? A.—I don't remember.

DX REPORT

By "BARNEY"

Last night was not a very good night for DX reception. Considerable hetrodyning between stations was the cause to some extent of a smaller than usual log of stations. However, the following list of stations were brought in on the loud speaker: KDKA, Pittsburgh; WEAF, New York; WJZ, New York; WTAM, Cleveland; WJR, Detroit.

What luck did you have? Send in your list and join Barney's DX Club—the membership is growing fast.

sible demand. We need people that will work.

THE AMERICAN Science Association is boiling over with important news.

Human life has increased by 30 years, from 42 to 72, in recent times.

The average American boy's height has increased two and one-half inches in the last fifty years—control of infantile diseases, and knowledge of the value of vitamins and sunlight, have done that.

DR. CARL FREDERICK SCHLISSEL, German scientist, says within 200 years the power of the atom will be liberated, "bring an end of human labor and suffering." Interesting, but the important thing is not our height, how long we live, or ability to live without work.

Freedom from labor would mean a new, more horrible suffering.

IF WE DID thirty years more of THINKING than we used to do, or if the average boy's brain were two and one-half inches bigger around, and 100 per cent. more active than it used to be, that would mean something.

Science advances, human intelligence stands still or moves as slowly as a glacier.

In Athens, 3000 years ago, the average of intelligence, among free citizens, was higher than it is in the British House of Commons today.

THE NICARAGUA foolishness has had publicity enough to prevent harm. Gentlemen pulling strings that move our government may even fail to get what they want. Publicity is as bad for international crookedness as sunlight for glanders.

WILL SOMEBODY answer this?

Why does this powerful nation intrude upon a weaker nation, occupying its ports, giving orders to its government, when, under exactly the same conditions, it would not dream of meddling with a powerful nation like Russia, Japan or Britain?

Uncle Sam, once advertised as "too proud to fight," should be too proud to play the bully.

A LEARNED Sacramento judge has a poor opinion of divorced women that draw alimony from former husbands and take life easily.

Schopenhauer says women are in league to compel every man to support some one woman all her natural life. That, says he, is why women are so hard on immoral sisters that make it unnecessary for men to marry.

OUR DIVORCE and alimony system makes many men support more than one wife, but that should not be hastily criticized.

This vale of tears was planned to give man an education, and he is getting it.

IN ENGLAND they mean to rule the waters, now that the modern ocean is the air, and their flying defence is entrusted to those that know about flying.

FOR INSTANCE, Sir Samuel Hoare, British Air Minister, is flying from London to India, with Lady Hoare, little round trip of 12,000 miles. And he won't "flop" because he forgot his oil or his gasoline.

WE HAD one air officer as good as that British Air Minister and better, General Mitchell. And we lost no time in getting rid of him. He is breeding horses in Virginia now, and men that ought to be breeding horses are running our flying force.

BEGINNING next month the United States will get in installments seventeen flying machines, each capable of carrying ten passengers or soldiers. That's good news for a start. When shall we get the other 2,383 planes? The British are making airships to carry one hundred soldiers each.

A DEEP FINANCIAL writer tells of "bearish omens" and thinks big men are talking fearfully to create an atmosphere in which they may unload stocks.

That is plain bosh. Intelligent citizens will agree with President Coolidge that the coming year will be a continuation of our great prosperity.

Our trouble may be described as "nervous prosperity." Men that get rich suddenly often get nervous and need several doctors.

GIFTS FOR 1ST 1927 BABY

By what he will receive, the first Greater Boston infant of the New Year becomes the Golden Baby.

For him is arranged—perhaps it is for her—a reception truly golden.

A layette complete to the last detail of silks and satins; bits of silver and golden jewelry for his adornment; the finest carriage for his airing and the latest nursery furniture for his happiness at home; $100 deposited in a savings account in his name and a bond for $100, both of which immediately start increasing for his future welfare—this is the partial list of golden gifts in store—awaiting now—for the first baby, whether boy or girl, born in Metropolitan Boston in 1927.

The exact time of the baby's birth to the hour, the minute, the second, must be put in the form of a signed statement by a registered physician.

These details must be telephoned at once to the New Year Baby Editor, Boston Sunday Advertiser, Liberty 4000, telephoned not next morning but as soon as the infant is born.

JAP PRINCE AT HERO'S TOMB

Washington, Dec. 30 (A.P.)—Prince Chichibu, heir-apparent to the Japanese throne, paid homage today to the illustrious dead of the United States as one of the first acts of a brief visit to Washington.

Hastening to Tokyo to be present at the ceremonies attendant upon the burial of his father, the Prince journeyed today to the Arlington National Cemetery, where he placed a wreath on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier. Then he hurried away to Mount Vernon to place another wreath on the tomb of Washington.

Late today the Prince will be received in private audience by President Coolidge and an hour or so afterward he will depart for San Francisco by way of Chicago. He will sail for Japan on January 4.

Weiss Beer of Pre-War Quality Hits Right Spot in Berlin

Berlin, Dec. 30 (A.P.)—Berliners are rejoicing over the return of weiss beer to pre-war quality. Ever since the war they had to content themselves with a cheap substitute, containing only 4 per cent. of alcohol. The result was that this pungent blond beverage lost much of its popularity and weiss beer brewers found themselves in a business slump.

The return to the original brew, of considerably greater strength, will entail an increase in price from about $4 a keg to around $6.75.

Weiss beer is said to be indigenous to Berlin alone, due to the peculiarly happy blending qualities of the Berlin water.

HUGE DRUG RING IS UNEARTHED

Montreal, Que., Dec. 30 (A.P.)—United States and Canadian investigators have uncovered what they believe to be the largest drug ring in North America, said F. W. Cowan, chief of the narcotic branch of the Department of Health of the Canadian government today.

Five alleged drug pedlars have been arrested and more arrests are expected.

Although $10,000 worth of drugs was seized today when arrests were made, a central plant had not been discovered, Cowan said. Three of the five arrested were railway porters who were charged with conspiracy to sell and distribute narcotics.

CITY TO GREET NEW YEAR

Boston will "ring out the old, ring in the new" on the Common at midnight tomorrow, according to plans announced by Director George H. Johnson for the municipal celebration.

Mayor Nichols will speak, and from 8 to 10:30 o'clock there will be a radio program, amplified by the city's radio apparatus at the Parkman bandstand. At 11:58 o'clock lights on the Christmas tree will be extinguished.

In the darkness taps will be sounded three times by a trumpeter. At midnight noise bombs will be set off on the athletic field and "Happy New Year" will be displayed in red lights on the bandstand. There also will be a vocal and instrumental concert.

ARE WORKING ARDENTLY FOR SUCCESS OF "TITANIA'S PALACE"
Mrs. Frederick Busk (left), Mrs. Oliver Ames, Jr., chairman (center), and Mrs. Arthur M. Beale are tireless in their efforts to put over the exhibit of Sir Nevile Wilkinson's masterpiece at Paine's. His creation, "Titania's Palace," will be on exhibition from January 10 to 29 inclusive.

COMMENT ON SOCIETY

MARRIAGE CEREMONIALS AND ALL THEIR ACCOMpanying festivities are taking an unusually prominent place in the calendar of late 1926 and early 1927. Saturday, the New Year's Day, is the nuptial day for Miss Barbara Bullard and Joseph Humphrey Chadbourne; also for Miss Marjorie Morton and Charles Gordon Sprague. Out-of-town ceremonials, that of Miss Elizabeth Atkinson and James Reynolds in Baltimore yesterday, and of Miss Virginia Pratt and Robert Thayer in Gotham today, likewise interest Boston's elect.

MISS BULLARD, DAUGHTER of the W. Irving Bullards of Beacon street, elects a home ceremonial at the hour of six in the evening, before a small company, of a hundred or so, primarily intimate friends and relations. After the ceremony itself there is a wedding supper. Miss Charlotte Bullard is maid of honor and the only bride attendant, and Dr. Robert Loeb, of New York, a cousin of Mr. Chadbourne's, is best man.

FOR SUCH A SMALL AND INTIMATE ceremonial there will be but two ushers, Edward J. Bullard, the bride's brother, and David Parsons, of Rye, N. Y. Dr. George Gordon, D. D., reads the marriage lines and W. Irving Bullard gives his daughter in marriage. There's a leisurely wedding journey South for the young people before they settle down in Charlotte, N. C., to make their home.

MRS. EDWIN OHL, JR., and Miss Helen Moseley are wearing very striking green velvet frocks today as they accompany Miss Virginia Pratt to the altar of St. Bartholomew's, New York, when she exchanges marriage vows with Robert Thayer of Southboro. All the bride's attendants are dressed alike, in bright green velvet, with green velvet hats with wide and floppy brims and green velvet shoes. It is that shade of green between seafoam and amande, softly brilliant and very effective in a bridal cortege, especially when used en masse.

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE CARPENTER MORTON, parents of the future Mrs. Charles Gordon Sprague (Marjorie Morton) are entertaining the wedding party at dinner this evening at the Algonquin Club. Mr. Sprague gives his farewell-to-bachelorhood dinner tomorrow evening at the Phineas Warren Sprague home in Commonwealth avenue. The Sprague-Morton nuptials are to be celebrated in the evening of the first day of the New Year, at the home of the bride's parents in Brookledge street.

SUB-DEBUTANTES AND SCHOOLBOYS home for the holidays figured in two of yesterday's affairs—the house dance Dr. and Mrs. J. Lewis Bremer gave for their daughter, Miss Barbara Bremer, and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lyman's supper dance for Miss Ruth Lyman. Both parties were entirely informal, in keeping with the youthfulness of the participants. Miss Lyman wore a frock of green silk and tulle and Mrs. Lyman was in rose pink. Miss Lyman is still quite in the schoolgirl class, and not slated for the debutante whirl for more than a year, at least.

"TITANIA'S PALACE" EXHIBITION is sure to be a record breaker. No charity project, foreign or domestic, imported or home-grown, has ever so taken Boston by storm as has this marvel of ingenuity that will be shown at Paine's from January 10 through the 29th. It's sure to prove a gold mine for the two charities it benefits, the Children's and Infants' Hospitals, because there's an enormous advance sale of tickets and an enormous interest everywhere in this "Palace" which can only be exhibited to aid sick little ones. Boston is one station on its world journey, which includes Australia and those other countries way down on the other side of the globe.

BOSTON SOCIETY, ALMOST TO A WOMAN, is lined up to assist in one way or another. Mrs. Oliver Ames, Jr., and Mrs. H. Parker Whittington are co-chairmen of the whole enterprise. Mrs. Arthur M. Beale has an executive post, likewise Mrs. Frederick Busk, and to name all the other Smart Set members who are backing the exhibition would necessitate a listing of the entire "Who's Who" of Boston.

Don't Shout Across Atlantic! Just Say It Soft and Low!

London, Dec. 30 (A.P.).—When you talk across the Atlantic, don't shout, but use quiet, even tones.

Publication of this advice by British officials, together with the drilling of telephone girls here in the names of New York exchanges, indicates proximity of the opening of the new trans-Atlantic radiophone service, which is to be made available to the public next month.

The operators will be girls chosen from the staff of Great Britain's trunk telephone system. They will be girls having a low, steady intonation.

The proposed rate of $75 for the first three minutes and $15 for each additional minute is expected to bar merely friendly chats.

IT'S KIPLING'S BIRTHDAY PHONE GIRLS DON'T CARE

London, Dec. 30 (A.P.)—"Burwash toll line speaking—What number do you want? Who? Spell it."

"K-i-p-l-i-n-g."

"What's his first name? Well, anyway there's no one on our list by that name. Isn't that that writer fellow? Well he hasn't any phone—detests them—in fact won't even allow a telephone pole in front of his house. He lives down the main road west, just over a mile.

"We never see him here in the village though we've heard about his books, but telephonically speaking Kipling doesn't exist for us.—His birthday! Is it? Oh, blow it—I expect all London will be calling up, but, come to think of it, I guess that won't bother me! I'm off duty now!"

Deaf May See Sound

New York, Dec. 30.—The deaf may now "see" sound. An invention called the osiso records sound vibrations photographically. To use the device the deaf must first learn to recognize the picture of each sound.

SAVE CRIPPLED GIRL AT ALLSTON FIRE

Hunted "Cat" Robber Baffles 300 Policemen

The Amazing Love Story of a Misunderstood Hub Working Girl

"Get me a number, girl," said Peggy haughtily to the indignant Christine.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Gay Moore and her cousin, Christine Noe, are employed in the State Street house of Johnstone Baird, Gay as a typist and Christine as telephone operator. Christine loves the good things of life, her dreams being of a rich marriage with money, clothes, automobiles and luxuries her chief aim, while Gay's dreams are of love and happiness. Coming from luncheon they meet Stanley Baird, son of their employer, and his chum, Roger Pennington.

When they enter the office, Christine, feigning indifference, flirts with Pennington, while Gay builds rosy dreams around Stanley. When they are leaving for the day, Christine tells Gay that the "Lilac Lady" has called the "boss."

Christine wants Gay to leave home and take an apartment in the West End. Gay refuses, for she feels she could never leave Jaimie and Mary, as she calls her affectionate parents, who have also raised Christine, an orphan, as their daughter.

On leaving for the office that morning, Gay notices that Christine has on her best dress, and accuses Christine of dressing purposely to catch the eye of Roger Pennington. Christine acknowledges the fact and tells Gay to "watch her land him."

CHAPTER 5

BUT after the mid-year holidays he walked another way with a new girl. And Gay cried into her pillow at night for a time.

"Missus must have heard something," said Gay. "She called Baird up today and wanted a lot of money. I told you she isn't folding her hands. She's got another protege—that's what she calls him anyway. Wild-eyed fiddler she dug up somewhere.

"She's putting him over in a concert and Baird's got to foot the bills. Believe me, he will, too! Got too much to worry about with his lilac lady to fuss over her boy friends.

"Christy, I think it's horrid of you! How could people act like that? Married people with a grown-up family. You make it look as if they hated each other."

"Maybe they do and maybe they don't. One thing sure, they've got the right idea. Each go their own way and not be swallowed by marriage. A woman can do that when she gets a rich man."

Gay put out her chin "Then I'll never, never have a rich man! I don't want to go my own way when I'm married. I want to share things—oh, whatever comes. I

SEEK RULING ON STRIKE

Washington, Dec. 30 (I.N.S.).—The Supreme Court was asked today to define a permissible strike, in a case for review by the Barket Painting Company of New York. The opinion will have a far-reaching effect on the unrestricted right of labor unions to strike.

The New York company, basing its case on the recent opinion of the court in the Dorchy case, in which it was held that all strikes were not permissible, charged that the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers of America and the Philadelphia local used the strike to force the company to pay the New York union scale in Philadelphia when the latter scale was lower. It was done, the company said, to confine business to Philadelphia contractors.

Lower courts refused to enjoin the strike.

MAN SCARED SPEECHLESS WHEN BANDITS ROB HIM

New Britain, Ct., Dec. 30 (A.P.).—A holdup man not only took away H. T. Vardanian's money here today, but also deprived the victim of his speech. Vardanian was stopped outside his home by two men who asked for a match. When he hesitated one man pointed a gun at him while the second took $41 from his pockets. Vardanian hurried to police headquarters, but it was some time before he was able to express himself verbally or in writing. He had been frightened speechless.

PROBE 'LIE' IN AIMEE CASE

Los Angeles, Dec. 30 (I.N.S.).—Fate of the entire Aimee Semple McPherson case was to be determined by the Los Angeles County Grand Jury today.

Possibility was that before night conspiracy charges against the woman evangelist, her mother, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, and Kenneth G. Ormiston, radio attendant of Mrs. McPherson's Angelus Temple, might be dismissed.

District Attorney Asa Keyes announced he had asked a Grand Jury hearing in order to consider the latest "confessions" of Mrs. Lorraine Wiseman-Seilaff, perpetrator of the notorious "Miss X" Carmel hoax in connection with the McPherson case.

The District Attorney declared he had proof that Mrs. Wiseman perjured herself in the preliminary hearing and that consequently her testimony would have to be withdrawn, leaving no expectation of conviction.

At the height of the investigation into Mrs. McPherson's disappearance, Mrs. Wiseman dropped out of a clear sky and said it was her own sister, and not Mrs. McPherson, who had been the companion of Ormiston, the Angelus Temple radio attendant, in his "love cottage."

GIRLS USED AS DECOYS FOILED

Free Three Hundred Suspects When No One Can Identify Criminal of New Type

Chicago, Dec. 30 (A.P.).—Chicago's "cat" robber, who, the police believe, has a Jekyl and Hyde personality, took a night off.

At any rate he eluded some 300 policemen rushed with shoot to kill orders into the Logan square district, which he terrorized Tuesday night in the same manner he has terrorized other northside areas for months by accosting and robbing unescorted women.

In addition, automobiles filled with armed and determined citizens, co-operating with the police, toured the district where the marauder might be expected to pounce upon his next woman victim.

DECOYS FAIL.

Fifteen young women hired especially by the police to parade the streets as bait for the robber walked in vain. Many figures lurked in dark alleyways, but they were all policemen or vigilantes.

Captain John Stege, deputy chief of detectives, believes a new type of criminal has appeared in Chicago in this robber of women. He also is convinced it is one man, not a series of them. Three hundred suspects have been taken recently, but no one has been able to identify the wily cat among them.

MAKES QUICK GET-AWAY.

"This fellow is clever, but not dangerous," Stege said. "He will be caught on the run, although he carries a revolver. He operates a block or two from Elevated stations, or from a business corner where a street car line runs, so he can make a quick get-away. He works near an alleyway, pulling over the lower part of his face a handkerchief which is tied closely around his neck.

The "cat" takes his victim's money first, talks vilely to them, but makes no effort otherwise to molest them. He is not an ordinary tough, but speaks with a quiet accent, does not strike the women."

ASK SARGENT FOR FACTS ON PROBE OF LAND BANKS

A resolution requesting United States Attorney-General Sargent to transmit to the Massachusetts Legislature the findings of the Federal government's investigation of joint stock land banks, was filed at the State House today by Representative Arthur F. Blanchard of Cambridge.

Blanchard has already filed two bills for an investigation of these banks and for State supervision. The Cambridge representative also made public today a letter to William Paddock, deputy-governor of the Federal Reserve Bank in Boston, seeking information of the Federal probe of these institutions, which, he pointed out, has shown a startling depreciation in stock value.

HUNT HIDING PLACE OF STRANGLER SLAYER OF 3

Kansas City, Mo., Dec 30.—(I.N.S.)—That the strangler-slayer who has taken a toll of three lives here is in hiding in a suburb is the tip on which police are working today.

Further strengthening of the theory that the fiend who took the lives of two women and an infant here by gaining access to homes pretending to search for a room is the same man who terrorized other cities was brought out when witnesses told police of having seen a man answering the description of one who strangled eleven persons to death in Pacific Coast cities and one at Council Bluffs, Iowa.

MISSING FISHERMAN IS SAVED; SENT TO HOSPITAL

Edward Butler of East Boston, given up for lost several days ago when the fishing schooner Ingomar came in to the Fish Pier with flag at half mast, is in a hospital at Lunenberg, N. S., following his rescue by a schooner of the La Have Outfitting Company's fleet off Brown's Bank. The message was today relayed to the Boston office of the Gorton Pew Fisheries, owners of the Ingomar. Butler set out last Saturday in a single dory and was lost in the snow storm and heavy sea.

WARM WEATHER FOR 1926 EXIT

The year 1926 is expected to exit gracefully as far as weather is concerned, with an equally graceful entrance being made by 1927, according to Weather Forecaster Loveland today.

The weather man for the country shows no abnormal or threatening conditions, with unusually good weather prevailing instead.

The official forecast read: Fair tonight and Friday; somewhat warmer Friday; moderate west to southwest winds.

The weatherman expected the mercury, tonight, would not drop below 24.

$16,000,000 for Vets' Mental Hospitals

Washington, Dec. 30 (A.P.).—A veterans' hospital construction program calling for an appropriation of $16,000,000 for structures or additions to existing ones is asked in a bill by Chairman Johnson of the House veterans' committee.

It would authorize 5,000 additional beds and, with a few exceptions, they would be used for World War veterans suffering from mental disorders. The measure follows recommendations made at the Philadelphia American Legion convention.

"Additional facilities," Johnson said today, "are necessary because the numbers of former service men afflicted with mental diseases attributable to the war has increased at the rate of 1,000 a year for four years. Under special treatment the government may be able to cure a substantial number of them, but hospital facilities are not able to meet demands."

New hospitals or additions are not to be in New England, but are chiefly in the central and far West.

Purchase of a hospital, however, is contemplated at Allington, Ct.

What Is Queen Marie Behind the Scenes?

HOW did Marie of Roumania REALLY enjoy her trip to America?

What sort of a woman is this most talked of royal personage of the world?

Is the smile she showed to the throngs a clever mask?

Is she the same in her own boudoir when she cold creams her face, tousles her hair, lights a soothing cigarette and settles on the chaise longe for a bit of relaxation that she was before the "madding crowd?"

Is she the democrat in contact with the people?

Did she enjoy the jostling?

These and many more intimate questions will be answered in eight chatty "inside" articles in the Boston Evening American, beginning MONDAY, JANUARY 3RD.

Miss Sarah Brown, one of journalism's cleverest woman reporters, obtained a "job" from the Queen as maid while she visited in Chicago. She was with her day and night. She will tell you the story of Marie as she is.

"No man," says the old saw, "is a hero to his valet."

What about a Queen and her maid?

Only the Boston Evening American will have this story.

U. S. THIEVES IN $250,000 HAUL

London, Dec. 30.—Thieves early today carried out one of the biggest hauls in British criminal annals when they raided Harrod's department store, getting away with jewelry estimated to be worth a quarter of a million dollars.

This bold robbery added to the recent long list leads the police to believe that in some cases American thieves have been engineering the coups.

Every show-case in the jewelry department of the huge store was ransacked and there are indications that the thieves left the store with their loot in a taxicab about 5 o'clock this morning.

The more expensive jewelry had been locked in the store safe and was not taken by the thieves who seemed to content themselves with a huge haul of lesser valuables.

HELPLESS, SAVED BY POLICE

Patrolmen Go Through Dense Smoke to Rescue Girl Near Death in Flames

Helpless with a broken leg and threatened momentarily with suffocation from thick smoke rolling up into her apartment, twenty-five-year-old Myrtle Karvis was carried from her bed to safety today during a fire at No. 32 Empire street, Allston.

Patrolmen Bernard and Drown of the Brighton station, learning from other tenants that fled that a girl with a broken leg was still inside the apartment block, groped their way through the smoke and carried her out tenderly.

The fire was in the basement immediately under Miss Jarvis' first-floor apartment, but firemen held the blaze downstairs with a damage of $1,000. It is believed it was started by a carelessly thrown match.

ILLEGAL DRIVER BLOWS HORN TILL HE'S CAUGHT

A very easy way to horn into trouble is to entertain lady friends with musical variations on an auto horn while tangled in traffic and not possessing a license to drive.

Harry Siegal of Callender street, Dorchester, went further than that, for he had forgotten his car registration also and was in an embarrassing position when Traffic Officer John Kelly, annoyed at the incessant blowing of the horn while attempting to untangle the jam, took Siegal to task.

In Municipal Court today Siegal paid a fine of $10 for having no license and not having his registration with him. The horn-blowing charge was filed.

PRIEST IS BURNED SAVING AUTOMOBILE

Grafton, Dec. 30 (A.P.).—Rev. John T. Cassidy, rector of St. Philip's Church, is nursing burns about the hands today. The burns were sustained when he rushed through the flames consuming his garage and saved his automobile and then tried to prevent the loss of a valuable collection of books and magazines.

The garage and barn and books were damaged to the extent of $6,000 before the firemen extinguished the flames.

BAY STATE TICKET FIRMS ENJOINED IN "TRUST" CASE

Washington, Dec. 30 (I.N.S.).—The American Amusement Ticket Manufacturers Association and thirteen of its members scattered through seven States today were enjoined from violation of the Federal anti-trust laws by a consent decree entered in the District of Columbia Supreme Court. Members of the organization are located in New York, New Jersey, Nebraska, Pennsylvania, Illinois, California and Massachusetts.

TRAFFIC CASE DEFAULTS INCREASE IN COURT

Eighteen more defaults were registered among the traffic cases in Judge Joseph Zottoli's traffic court today. It is getting to be such a habit among traffic offenders in Boston to ignore the court summons that both judge and police are at a loss for a remedy. The early average of five or six defaults has grown to fifteen to twenty daily.

Watertown, N. Y., Dec. 30. (A.P.).—The large paper mill owned by the International Paper Co. at Glen Park, a suburb of this city, was destroyed by fire today with a loss estimated at $300,000. It is believed a cigarette caused the blaze.

It's Time to Resuscitate Those Good New Year's Resolutions

EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

RUNYON SAYS:

I HAVE before me a strange missive written on a letter head that might have been most disquieting to one who had led other than a dead square existence in every respect. A clear conscience is a great thing.

Damon Runyon

I am very glad that this letter head did not go to my contemporaries Mr. Hy plus Igoe, or Mr W. Oswald McGeehan, or they might have jumped to the conclusion that they had been discovered and immediately gone down to the river and ended all. The letterhead is emblazoned "The Public Vigilance Co-operative Anonymous Service."

Under this in smaller type is the wording, "Created for the purpose of establishing virtue, uplift, and eliminating corrupt and evil influence." I would send in my application at once if any address had been given, for them's my sentiments, as my father used to say.

The letter is signed W. Murray, or something to that effect, and it apprises me of a fiendish plot among the New York Giants. As I gather, they used loaded bats to steal their last pennant.

IT seems from what my correspondent of The Public Vigilance Co-operative Anonymous Service says, the Giants had six loaded bats made by an inventor living at South Jamaica, on Long Island. The letter gives the inventor's name, but I refrain from making it public, because I wish to tip off some of my friends in baseball who needed a loaded bat, or maybe a loaded [illegible] to keep them in the big league much longer.

Does Not State How Bats Are Loaded

My Anonymous Service operative tells me that this inventor has done a lot of similar nefarious work for other big league clubs, but he omits to state just how the bats are loaded. I suppose they are patented by the inventor and he would not give out the formula, anyway.

I believe that Mr. George Sisler, late manager of the St. Louis Browns, was once accused of fattening his batting average to some extent by loading his bat with tacks at the end to make it drive the ball farther, but a lot of my friends in the pastime tried the same thing and couldn't make it work. It seems that you first have to hit the ball.

I must confess, however, that I have never heard of the Giants using loaded bats in bunches. If they did have five of them at one time they must have lost them before the beginning of last season, because the club wound up just a hop ahead of Brooklyn and Boston on the season's slugging, and Brooklyn and Boston were at the bottom of the league in that department.

IT is possible that Mr. Jack Hendricks, the manager of the Cincinnati Reds, may have purloined the loaded bats and distributed them among his men, as Mr. Raymond Bressler, Mr. Eugene F., alias Bubbles, Hargrave and Mr. Walter Christensen, of the Reds, were up there belting one-two-three on the season's averages.

Even Senor Adolfo Luque, the furious Cuban, contributed his modest little .346 in thirty-four games, and the Cincinnati club as a whole led the league in batting with .290. Why the Cincinnati club did not win the pennant hitting this way is something of a mystery, but it may be explained by the loaded bats. Perhaps old George Retribution was working against them on that account. You never can tell.

Cardinals Used No Bats to Decide

ST. LOUIS, using no cuffs or moustache to deceive us, ran a jolly second to the Reds in hitting with .286. And don't forget that Mr Rogers Hornsby hit only .316 last season as against his usual .400.

After all it isn't what a club hits as a total, it is WHEN it hits that counts in winning pennants. It is no unusual thing for a club to be out-hit by several other clubs on the season, but still grabs the gonfalon, as the boys used to say.

I may be hard to please, but I fear I must dismiss the information of The Public Vigilance Co-Operative Anonymous Service as of no great value for scandal purposes at this time. I am not ungrateful for the service—I merely feel that it has been so long since the Giants won their last pennant that I can make little of loaded bats at this time.

If the Public Vigilance Co-operative Anonymous Service has any little thing in the way of "old pal" letters, or pillows under which money was once hidden, I might possibly make use of them. And I am sure I am violating no confidence when I state that as a matter of fact the New York baseball public is interested at this time only in learning if the Giants will have a few loaded bats next season.

Are Giant Bats Loaded For 1927?

RISBERG TO BE HEARD BY LANDIS

Judge Accepts Challenge of Former "Black Sox" Infielder

By GENE HOFFMAN,
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent.

CHICAGO, Dec. 30. — Charles "Swede" Risberg former shortstop of the Chicago White Sox team, banished with six of his mates from organized baseball in 1920 following exposure of the "framed" World Series of the year before, will be given an opportunity to tell what he knows of "crooked baseball," Commissioner K. M. Landis indicated today.

The former "Black Sox" infielder had announced that he had a lot of "inside information" that would crumble still further the tottering pillars of baseball, but charged that "Landis and the big bosses do not want this information."

Risberg pooh-poohed the Cobb-Speaker-Leonard scandal and ridiculed Commissioner Landis for his handling of the case. He challenged Landis to a showdown, and indicated that if the commissioner is really interested in "baseball crookedness" he could tell him things that would make the Cobb-Speaker affair look tame.

"But they don't want the facts," said Risberg.

FACTS WANTED.

That Landis and "the bosses" do want the facts was indicated today in Commissioner Landis' acceptance of Risberg's challenge. Asked what action he would take concerning Risberg's charges, Landis said:

"Of course, he will be asked for the information. Anything along that line will be most welcome."

Risberg was quoted in telegraphic dispatches from Rochester, Minn., near where he spends his Winters on a farm. He plays baseball at Watertown, S. D., during the Summer. Risberg said he offered all his information during the grand jury investigation of the 1920 scandal, but that "nobody wanted to hear it."

Joint Investigation Is Sought by Congressmen

Washington, Dec. 30 (I.N.S.)—A joint investigation of organized baseball by Senate and House will be sought as a result of the ousting of Tris Speaker and Ty Cobb, it was indicated today.

Representative Kelly (R.) of Pennsylvania announced that he would confer with Senator Capper (R.) of Kansas to devise ways and means of revealing the inside workings of baseball management.

"I would like to see a joint committee named, or one investigation conducted before Senate and House committees sitting together," Kelly said.

"However, if it appears more feasible to get action in Senate, I will defer to the action of that body."

FROWN ON IDEA.

Congressional leaders generally continued to frown upon the proposed investigation.

One of the leading lawyers in the Senate declared Congress had no authority to act and also declared that Speaker and Cobb could not succeed in a million-dollar damage suit against Judge Landis, baseball czar.

"The Federal government has nothing to do with the internal workings of organized baseball," said this Senator, who is thoroughly familiar with the legal machinery of baseball. "It has been officially decided that organized baseball is not interstate commerce, and even if it were otherwise the present issue could give rise to no Federal question whatsoever.

"Speaker and Cobb voluntarily submitted themselves to the operation of a system of which Commissioner Landis is an integral part," he continued. "If in the discharge of his duties he acts in good faith, nobody in the organization has any legal redress against him merely because aggrieved by his decision."

Cobb and Speaker have been publicly advised by friends in the Senate to file a suit for $1,000,000 damages against Landis.

Cobb and Speaker to Take Joint Action, Attorney Says

Detroit, Dec. 30 (I.N.S.).—Joint action is expected to be taken by Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker to clear their names of charges of having thrown a ball game between Detroit and Cleveland, it was announced today by Judge J. O. Murfin, attorney for Cobb.

Following a conference between Judge Murfin, Cobb and E. S. Burke of Cleveland, Murfin said that he hoped to meet William H. Boyd, Speaker's attorney, in Toledo tomorrow when the two will decide upon their plan of action.

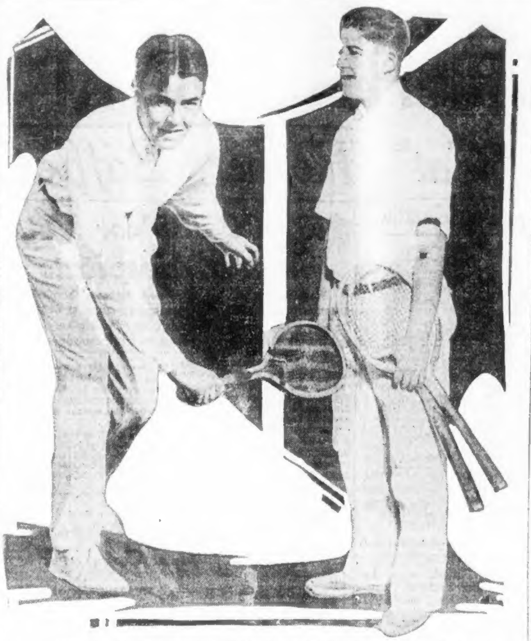
JUNIOR NET STARS IN TITLE BATTLE



HENRY JOHNSON OF WABAN AND JULIUS SELIGSON

Johnson, on the left, national junior doubles champion, with M. T. Hill, of Boston, has gained the semi-final bracket of the national junior indoor singles at Baltimore, in which he will meet Frank Shields of New York tomorrow. At the same time, Julius Seligson, the defending titleholder, will play Eddie Jacobs of Baltimore in the other semi-final. Seligson is the general favorite to repeat, but local fans are rooting for Johnson.

'HEN' JOHNSON REACHES SEMI-FINALS

Baltimore, Dec. 30.—Henry L. Johnson, Jr., of Boston, will meet Frank Shields of New York tomorrow in one of the semi-final matches of the national indoor junior tennis championships which are in process of play here.

Johnson attained the semi-final bracket by a slashing upset in defeating Big Bill Tilden's young Philadelphian protege, Donald Strachan. The scorew as 6—2, 1—6, 6—4. At the same time Eddie Jacobs of Baltimore was eliminating the only other remaining Boston entry, Malcolm T. Hidl, who with Johnson is junior doubles titleholder.

The other semi-final match will be between Julius Seligson of New York, present junior title defender, and Eddie Jacobs, last year's runner-up. Seligson is the general favorite to annex the title for the second year.

Wilbur F. Coen, of Kansas City, eliminated Henry Clabaugh, Maryland boys' champion, in the semi-final round of the boys' division. Coen, a protege of Bill Tilden, found Clabaugh's drives hard to meet, but his smashing service gave him the edge, 6—4, 6—0.

NEW ZEALAND FIGHTER COMING TO AMERICA

London, Dec. 30 (A.P.).—Tom Heeney, New Zealand heavyweight champion, who since last July has several times challenged the British champion, Phil Scott, to fight here, sails soon for America and hopes to arrange a meeting with Scott here.

Heeney and Scott have met twice before, the latter winning both times on points. The first fight took place two years ago and the second was in July last at Southampton, when Heeney took Joe Beckett's place owing to the latter straining an arm muscle. Despite the fact that Heeney had only two days' training, he forced Scott to go the twenty rounds to win on points.

NORWAY AND HOLLAND ACCEPT CUP CHALLENGES

New York, Dec. 30 (A.P.).—Challenges for two international yachting trophies, the Seawanhaka and Scandinavian gold cups, have been accepted from Norway and Holland by the Seawanhaka Corinthian Club. The races will be sailed off Oyster Bay next September.

Norway will attempt to lift both trophies, while Holland has challenged only for the gold cup. Denmark and Sweden also are expected to seek the latter prize. The contending yachts will be of the six-meter class.

Sharkey Tells How He Finished Wills

By JACK SHARKEY
(As Told to Jack Conway)

CHAPTER XV.

CLANG! The old gong sounded and my battle with Harry Wills was on.

The Brown Panther came out of his corner fighting, bent on destroying me as quickly as possible. He drove a left hook for my head and I stepped out of the way of it. He followed this up with a right for the jaw. I dropped my head under the punch.

After two minutes of fighting I started to jab and hook Wills as he rushed to close quarters. I would crack my left to his chin as he would start one of his heavy blows. The result was his punch went wild, while my left hook would send his head back and jar the negro's spinal column. The nervous energy which enables one to put over a knockout is concealed in the shoulders and spinal column. I kept tapping his reservoir of vitality as I rocked the Brown Panther with left hooks and jabs.

Wills' eyes began to pop with surprise. He realized that instead of having a setup he was in for the fight of his life.

I continued the same tactics for the second and third rounds. I made Wills miss repeatedly, while I kept him on his heels by scoring with left jabs and hooks. I was so much faster than Harry that I could hit my huge opponent almost at will.

Johnny Buckley had tipped me months before the fight that Wills was easy to hit with a short, overhand right hand punch. I had spent weeks practicing with this blow, confident that some day I would get a shot at Wills.

Early in the fourth round, I scored with one of these punches. I did not put everything I had behind it as I did not wish to leave myself open to a counter attack from the negro until I was sure how the blow would work out. Wills was startled when I clipped him on the chin. I followed it up with a savage left hook to the point of the jaw.

I increased my speed and made Wills miss repeatedly. I finally got him in position in the centre of the ring. I feinted with my left hand and as Harry started to guard against it I let drive a fierce, right hand sock for the jaw. Every ounce of energy in my body was behind that blow. It landed square and true and drove Wills half way across the ring into a neutral corner.

Wills, his eyes glassy, knees and body trembling, instinctively dropped his head and covered up. In the excitement, my punch was also wild and went over my opponent's head.

Wills was smart enough to get out of the corner. I chased him and finally was able to score with a hard attack to the body. Then the bell sounded and Wills was saved for the time being.

I gave Wills a decisive setback in the fifth round. I hit him almost at will with left and right hand punches.

Meanwhile Harry called into play his usual line of fighting when at close quarters. He hit time and again after being ordered to break by Referee Patsy Haley. He also used the back hand punch which is barred.

From that point on it was a very one-sided battle. By the end of the eighth frame I had both of Harry's eyes partly closed, while there were big welts on his face and body as a result of the terrific hammering I had subjected him to.

Wills' courage was the only thing that enabled him to carry on. At the end of each subsequent round it was necessary for the referee or one of Harry's seconds to show him where his corner was.

In the thirteenth round when Wills continued to hit after the break and use the back hand punch after repeated warnings, Referee Patsy Haley stopped the contest and declared me the winner. Neither Wills nor Paddy Mullins, his manager, made a murmur against the decision. I think the Brown Panther was glad the referee had stopped the bout as he could hardly have lasted another round.

When Haley lifted my right arm in the air and the 40,000 fans joined in giving me a mighty ovation, I was overcome with emotion and cried like a baby. I soon mastered control of myself, hurried to my dressing room and then to New York where I joined Mrs. Sharkey and my mother, who had prayed for me while I battled under the big Kleig lights.

Wills declared after the bout that I would surely beat Gene Tunney when we meet.

(In the final article of his series in tomorrow's Boston Evening American, Sharkey will tell how he will defeat Gene Tunney.)

LEAGUE HEAD SUGGESTS NEW HOCKEY RULES

By BILL GRIMES.

For many years the hockey fans have been crying for changes in the rules which will bring about more scoring and speed up the games. The biggest thrills in a hockey game come with goals and the low scoring contests fail to arouse the enthusiasm, while the whistle robs the game of much interest.

With this thought in mind, President Frank Calder of the National Hockey League has sent out questionnaires to the ten N. H. L. clubs, containing six questions which are to be answered and returned to him.

Bill Grimes

The questions are as follows:

1. Do you think that the goal nets should be widened 12 inches?
2. Do you think that offsides by defending team should be allowed in defending territory?
3. Do you think that carrying the puck on the skate should be allowed in defending zone?
4. Do you think substitution should be allowed other than when time is out?
5. Do you think player should be penalized without warning for being in defending zone?
6. Do you think that player should be penalized without warning for picking up or carrying the puck?

Along with attempting to set things so there will be more scoring it is the intention of the N. H. L. to speed up the game as much as possible. The players and the fans do not enjoy a game where the referee's whistle is overworked.

The team, which, upon getting the puck in its own territory, kicks or carries the puck with a skate, is getting very little advantage. They still have a long way to go before they will be in a scoring position. At present a kick in any part of the playing surface, outside of the centre zone, calls for a whistle and a new face off. The game is slowed up by a foul which means little or nothing to either team.

PAD CUT BEST.

The question regarding the widening of the nets will not meet with the approval of many of the governers. The claim has been set up that it is almost an impossibility to score from a wing inside the outer defence. The nets are six feet wide but a goalie can cover more than one-third of the nets with the wide pads they are allowed to wear, leaving a very small space for a shot to enter the goal. It would seem that if the goal tenders pads were cut down to ten inches that the chance of scoring would be better than by widening the nets.

It does not seem as though the rule against offside play in the defending zone necessitated a change. If players are allowed to pass forward in their own territory as well as in the centre zone, the game will take on too much of the roller polo type of play and although there is no question but that it would speed up the game, it will rob it of much interest, for it will encourage a loafing or trailing forward, who will be fed by one of his teammates.

A player should be allowed to come off the ice at any time he deems himself unfit for service, without waiting for the whistle. Many players have been injured but, because the play was going on, they were obliged to stay in the game until the whistle blew. Through no fault of its own, the injured player's team is weakened and the players are in danger of further injury. Upon resubstituting without a whistle, a substitute cannot go on the ice until the relieved player is off.

RESULT IN DOUBT.

The new rules, if they are passed, regarding more than two men being in the defending zone and picking up or carrying the puck, which calls for a penalty without warning, will help to keep the play going.

It is quite probable that most of the governors will agree on all the questions except that one about widening the nets. Boston, Ottawa, Chicago, Detroit and New York Rangers will favor the changes, but Les Canadiens, Toronto and Pittsburgh will oppose them, while the stand to be taken by the Montreal Maroons and New York Americans is hard to determine.

Upon receiving the answers of the various governors, President Frank Calder will decide as to whether the changes will be put into effect this season, or await the opening of the 1927-28 season.

FOREIGN BOXERS TO SEE ST. JOE BOUTS

Members of the St. Joseph's T. A. S. of the West End are planning a gala welcome to the members of the Danish and Swedish amateur boxing teams at the weekly tournament of the organization, which will be held at Commercial Hall, Bowdoin Square, next Saturday night.

The foreign boxers will be on hand to witness their first amateur tournament in America and they are manifesting keen interest in the trip. For this reason, the St. Josephs are planning to stage the best show of the season Saturday night.

Seven classes will be carded, including two novice divisions and five open classes.

Now He's Up There

SCANDAL NOW GATHERING STAGE SETTING

OUR baseball scandal is now developing as all real scandals should. The sinister figure, Dutch Leonard, denies that he was paid any money for the fatal papers. The man of mystery, George West, declares that the money was bet on a horse, not on a baseball game. This is as exposes and probes usually go. The lastest angles will be investigated and tossed into the ash-can with the Christmas present boxes. Then we will find out that the names of the players mentioned were mistakes. Instead of Tris Speaker and Ty Cobb, the victims will turn out to be rookies who never made the grade. The alibis and contradictions would be fine if they appeared when a scandal broke. Young Mister West, for instance, should have recalled in less than a week the fact that he played a horse that won. Most gamblers can remember a thing like that forever. Young Mister West made a few scattering remarks about not knowing what the envelopes contained, and so on. The sudden recovery of memory would appear to the skeptical what the boys call a frameup. It provides an out for the athletes, if they are looking for one. Playing the horses has not yet been put in the class of major crimes in baseball, although it is about to be. Mister West may have one of those peculiar memories that afflict star witnesses ever and anon. They smilingly answer all questions with "I don't remember," until the judge mutters ho-hum and dozes off.

Nick Flatley

DUTCH LEONARD'S DECLARATION REMOVES HIM FROM POSSIBLE BLACKMAIL ACCUSATIONS. THAT, TO THE BOYS, LOOKS LIKE ANOTHER OF THOSE THINGS.

LOOKS AS IF IT WOULD LAST ALL WINTER

DUTCH LEONARD'S remarks about his unwillingness to hurt baseball must bring tears to the eyes of those who have been inclined to blame the young man in this tangle. His remarkable silence about salary troubles with the Detroit ball club, over a four-year period, shows that he is the original sphinx. Dutch himself almost sobs, as he explains how he has been misjudged.

Meantime Lawyer Murfin, who is busy attorneying for Tyrus Cobb, announces that he has the proofs that Leonard did peddle his epistles to organized baseball. Here we have material for much more discussion, argument and recrimination.

What looked like a quiet Winter now promises to wreck all records for excitement and conversation. But it isn't the kind of advertising that helps any cause.

When legal technicalities and sports get mixed up, the ensuing hash is naturally something horrible to contemplate.

FIVE thousand fans watch a soccer game in a blizzard. The name of that sport is misspelled.

O'FARRELL HUSTLED, AND LOOK AT HIM

BOB O'FARRELL, most valuable player in the National League last season, grabbed a thousand dollars when he swamped the election. Now he has been rewarded more generously than any hero who ever was admittedly the best in one campaign. He is named manager of the Cardinals, world champions. He takes over a team that has pennant possibilities for two or three more races.

He has a lot of young players and enough stars to balance them. The team has lost Hornsby, but gets Frisch, who was a better performer in '26 than Rogers. Young Mister O'Farrell has a chance that seldom comes to a man who hasn't battled fate until his batting days are over.

CAV'S PLEA FOR SHIFT IS BLOCKED

Coaches Ride Over His Protest and Demand Two-Second Stop

NEW YORK, Dec. 30 (A.P.)—Less [illegible] less [illegible] and no more [illegible] is the outlook of intercollegiate football for 1927.

Over the vigorous protest of Major Frank Cavanaugh, [illegible] a veteran coach at Fordham University, who asserted that the action would "murder" the modern game, 200 members of the American Football Coaches Association yesterday voted to recommend a [illegible] and "penalty" on all shift plays to the rules committee.

An amendment added at the suggestion of Coach Bill Roper of Princeton would retain the present practice of allowing one backfield player to be in motion when the play is started.

It was the opinion of the experts that no stop watches would be needed to enforce the legislation. The rule, which conforms to sentiment in the western conference. The [illegible] for officials to count off the seconds mentally during the period between the shift and the snapping of the ball.

ROPER AGAINST SCOUTING.

Sponsoring the crusade against scouting, Roper said that the Yale-Princeton agreement of last season worked so well that the Tigers next year probably would not scout any of their opponents. He voiced the conviction that a better team could be developed without scouting. The men could be taught to think for themselves.

Reports of the coaches also indicated general dissatisfaction with the huddle, the advantages of which will be greatly curtailed by curbing of the shift.

Roper criticizes attempts of some teams to use too many plays.

"NO OVEREMPHASIS."

Overemphasis, the predominating topic of football discussion last Winter, was almost forgotten until the coaches filed into the banquet hall last night to hear Professor Charles W. Kennedy of Princeton and Parke Davis, authority and writer on football announce that "no such thing existed."

Restriction of practice to two hours daily, fixing of $25 with expenses as a suitable fee for officials and stabilizing of the coaching profession were other favorably received recommendations.

As the meeting adjourned last night, the National Collegiate Athletic Association prepared to move into the forum today to pass final judgment on the game. Reports before the meeting indicated that intercollegiate sport is in "the best of health."

Prof. John C. Adams of Yale submitting a survey of athletic conditions in New England, expressed gratification over the growing opposition to scouting and the increasing desire of athletic directors to provide competition for all students.

HOLY CROSS AND YALE MEET FOR COURT TITLE

New Haven, Dec. 30.—Holy Cross and Yale fought their way to the finals in the New England round robin basketball tournament in the Yale gymnasium.

Holy Cross defeated the University of Vermont 35 to 29, while Yale won from Tufts, 30 to 27. Tonight the winners meet each other for the title, and the losers will contest for the consolation prize.

TUNNEY WILL AVOID HASTY SIGNATURES

By DAVIS J. WALSH
I. N. S. Sports Editor

New York, Dec. 30.—Gene Tunney will sign to defend his heavyweight title only when the final and ultimate challenger is developed and only with the promoter who can deliver the individual in question at a maximum of advantage to all, including himself. The champion made this announcement to the writer today by way of dispelling Humbert J. Fugazy's impression that he intended to sign himself away with Fugazy without observing the formality of learning the views of Mr. Tex Rickard on the matter.

"No one, unless it was Fugazy, seriously credited the idea that a heavyweight champion would sign a contract six months before his fight could take place and with the first promoter who whispered sweet nothings. Mr. Tunney, therefore, merely is confirming the general belief that he is not addicted to mild insanity.

"Of course, Rickard is not barred," Tunney stated. "When Tex feels that the time has come to say his say, I shall be ready to listen. It would be absurd to do otherwise. For the same reason, I am listening to Fugazy now.

"He has made me a proposition. I have informed him that at a proper time [illegible]. But that I hope [illegible] constitute a [illegible] in terms. Why, we haven't even determined the identity of the challenger and can't at [illegible] early date."

Tunney professed an abiding desire to meet only the best challenger when the time came. He made no choice among Jack Sharkey, Jack Delaney, Jimmy Maloney and the field in general.

And from Tunney's general appearance it might be inferred that he will be ready for the big moment. His appearance is not a life of ease and refinement for he informed the writer that he boxed four rounds daily, carefully watched his diet and either went for short runs on the road or otherwise indulged in some form of exercise calculated to preserve his stamina.

He professed ignorance as to his exact weight, but declared that it wasn't a pound over 19[illegible]. He appeared to be almost as fit as he was in the Dempsey fight.

Yusko and Sarpolis in Title Go Tonight

By JACK CONWAY

FRANK YUSKO and Doc Sarpolis are expected to furnish one of the most thrilling wrestling bouts of the season when they battle in a finish bout, best two falls out of three, at the Grand Opera House tonight, under the direction of Paul Bowser. The Lithuanian heavyweight title will be at stake in this skirmish.

Jack Conway

Yusko is one of the best known of the big fellows. He has clashed with most of the headliners in the mat game and has usually come through a winner. Frank is in the best of condition for tonight's skirmish and is of the opinion he will send Sarpolis down to defeat.

Sarpolis is a newcomer. A long run of victories has put him out front in the heavyweight division. He believes that a triumph over Yusko will give him the right to demand matches with Strangler Lewis, Joe Stecher and Joe Malcewicz.

With the Lithuanian championship at stake it is expected that the Grand Opera House will be filled to capacity tonight.

Another [illegible] tussle will bring together Pat McGill, class Irish champion and Frank Bruno, Ukrainian title holder.

Nick Nazarian, Armenian champion, will tangle with Chief Manitou, while Ned McGuire will appear in the opening preliminary against the best available opponent.

NEW YEAR'S afternoon and evening will see action at the boxing clubs around the New England circuit. At the Casino A. C. of Lynn on the afternoon of the holiday, Buddy Clark of Salem will tackle Cannonball Cote of Lewiston. This tussle will bring together two of the hardest hitting welterweights in New England.

Blue Nose Parent of Lewiston will clash with Young Oliver of Fall River in an eight-round semi-final.

Young Russe Mack of Gloucester will oppose Jimmy Wharton of Boston in a six-round preliminary. Another preliminary will feature Willie Callahan of Nashua, N. H., and Tommy Daly of Lynn.

BOB JASSE of Revere, one of the most promising young [illegible] to [illegible] his way to [illegible] [illegible] Flynn, former amateur champion, in a [illegible] at Lewiston Saturday [illegible] Jasse [illegible], after a torrid mixup at the Arena.

THE colored middleweight championship of the world will be at stake when Panama Joe Gans of New York, the champion, and Bomar Robertson [illegible] meet [illegible] in the feature [illegible] at the Crescent [illegible] New Year's [illegible]. This contest is attracting considerable interest in the Merrimack Valley and the largest crowd of the season should be in attendance.

Gans won the colored middleweight championship in the old Madison Square Garden four years ago [illegible] by Tex Rickard. If Robertson can win [illegible] for many lucrative matches here and throughout the country.

[illegible] of South Boston and Joe Dwyer of Cambridge, two [illegible] will clash in the semifinal of eight rounds. Young Joe Monteiro of Lowell and Mike Asaf of Lawrence and Babe Mc[illegible] of Lowell and Tom Doyle of Salem will meet in the two six-round preliminary bouts.

KID KAPLAN, Jewish heavyweight, plans to work out with [illegible] McCarthy at Jim Tolland's Gym. McCarthy is one of the smartest young men in the heavyweight group and will be able to teach Kaplan many of the fine points of the game. Jim MacDonald says he will start Kaplan at one of the local [illegible] early next year. He is confident he will prove every bit as big a sensation as did King Solomon when he first showed here.

Bob Quinn Wants a "Clean Sports" Ambassador

BOB QUINN, president of the Boston Red Sox, spoke an "aside" in Chicago today, in which he said he would like to see Landis appoint a "clean sports" ambassador to bolster sport ethics among players of both major leagues. The "ambassador" would mingle with the players frequently, keeping constantly before them their responsibility of keeping the game on a high plane.

CONTROVERSY ON HUDDLE SYSTEM IN BASKETBALL

New York, Dec. 30 (A.P.)—Controversy over the use of the huddle signal system in basketball has called forth an opinion on its legality from Oswald Tower, editor of the official guide [illegible].

Tower holds that [illegible] is within [illegible] provided the game is not delayed [illegible].

"When the [illegible] gives the signal with his arms [illegible] to let him hesitate a couple of seconds outside the circle. Do you see any hope of our making [illegible] would you advise me to start a divorce case?

"[illegible] MARRIED MAN."

WITHOUT knowing more of the circumstances and your wife's side of the story, it is impossible to say, my friend, whether there is any hope of your becoming reconciled.

Are you quite certain that you have not given your wife cause to fear and dislike you? Do all you can to live up to your part in the marriage contract in spirit as well as letter.

Of course, if your wife is all in the wrong—if she is an unreason[illegible] extravagant [illegible] there I can't see [illegible] would long to return to such an atmosphere.

Does your religion permit of divorce? If so, it is possible that by consulting with a lawyer you will learn that if she has deserted you without cause you may be able to divorce her without paying alimony.

QUART OF WATER CLEANS KIDNEYS

Take a Little Salts if Your Back Hurts, or Bladder Is Troubling You

No man or woman can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well known authority. Eating too much rich food creates acids, which excite the kidneys. They become overworked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood. Then we get sick. Rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness and urinary disorders often come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, begin drinking a quart of water each day, also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and in a few days your kidneys may act fine.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for years to flush and stimulate the kidneys, also to help neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer cause irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which everyone should take now and then to help keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby often avoiding serious kidney complications.

This year have something to show for your Xmas check

MOTHER [illegible] will choose to spend her Christmas check with her usual foresight for the family's comfort . . . on a new waffle iron, percolator, vacuum cleaner, or perhaps a modern ice chest.

And now during post holiday sales, she will get the utmost in value for every purchase suggested by the advertisements in the Boston American and Boston Advertiser.

[illegible] A month [illegible] of [illegible] with B[illegible] the [illegible] suffered a tremor [illegible] private [illegible] were still [illegible] to [illegible]

One [illegible] evening, a week or two after Ralph's talk with his sweetheart, as he was calling to [illegible]

[illegible] Roberts, Babe exclaimed [illegible] "You can't [illegible] that way about the man I'm going to marry."

"[illegible]?" Bushman fired back [illegible] "Well I'll show you! You're going to marry Brent Wilcox and [illegible] After this is fixed up [illegible] much to [illegible]"

"You're saying things that are perfectly wild, Uncle Bob," Babe answered soothingly. "Please—please try out just this one idea of Ralph's—just this one thing more [illegible] spite of Bushman's continued [illegible] a large, brown-paper [illegible] to place it on the table.

"Well?" snapped the owner of the [illegible] "It's your [illegible] wonderful thing [illegible] to offer."

"Mr. Bushman," Gordon said, [illegible] to the brown paper upon the table, "I have to offer sufficient evidence to thoroughly incriminate one in whom you have trusted. These are the books of Bushman and Company. Officer, arrest Brent Wilcox."

It was like a bolt from the blue. The officer, who had gradually edged closer to his quarry as Gordon spoke, now slipped a pair of handcuffs upon Wilcox so quickly that the secretary scarcely realized what was happening. He was on his feet in a moment, pointing an accusing finger at Gordon. "You [illegible]," he hissed. "You haven't a thing on me and know it! Open the package, Mr. Bushman. [illegible]—the books were burned—he's simply trying to create a favorable impression upon you and Barbara."

"Sorry to disappoint you," Ralph returned quietly, as the officer [illegible] Wilcox back into his chair. "These are the Bushman books. [illegible] the [illegible] afternoon, carried them to the basement and proceeded to fire the place. I was watching every move you made. As soon as you left, I put the blaze out [illegible] in the safe [illegible] Wonder you didn't [illegible]"

"Why—I don't see why he—" stammered the confused Bushman.

"Of course you didn't, although it's the same old story," Ralph interrupted. "Wilcox is a very smooth individual, but I've been suspicious of him from the moment I struck the place. He's been steadily falsifying the records for a long time, collecting and banking funds which do not belong to him, hoping to dazzle your lovely niece sufficiently to persuade her to marry him. He started the fire a month ago, too, but the safe turned up unharmed so he had to go his little stunt again. You'll have no trouble collecting your insurance, Mr. Bushman."

"Young man," Bushman said after several thoughtful moments, "I guess I've maligned you and your ability somewhat. You remember, don't you, what you said about asking for the most valuable thing I own when you succeeded?"

"I've got it, Mr. Bushman," Ralph returned, with a dry chuckle. "I knew I'd earned it so Babe married me this morning."

COOMBS AFTER THIRD LETTER AT EXETER

By EDDIE DONDERO.

Raymond "Bobby" Coombs, a native of Kennebunk, Maine, nephew of "Jack" Coombs, famous pitcher who played with the Philadelphia Athletics and Brooklyn Nationals some years ago, is about to become the first three-letter athlete at Exeter Academy in seven years.

Exeter is in the almost unprecedented situation of not having an "E" athlete among the track candidates. Coombs only has a letter in football and baseball, is among the runners who have been retained by Trainer Henry Carroll and bids fair to earn his third letter before the close of the indoor track season.

Upon entering Exeter in 1925 "Bobby" joined the ball club, playing in the garden and alternating as a moundsman. Last season he was the most valuable player on the nine, winning the Wingate Trophy mainly because a time bingle from his bat scored the deciding run in the annual Exeter-Andover game.

When James Healy, captain elect of the 1927 ball hawks, left school, Coombs was elected captain. He is the most natural ballplayer on the squad.

Last September, with but little experience, he came out for the eleven and succeeded in winning the quarterback assignment before the season was very old. He is by far the most versatile athlete in school and much is expected from him during the Winter on the wooden saucer.

He is a promising candidate for the relay team which will run against Andover at the B. A. A. games on February 5.

He expects to enroll at Princeton after he completes his course at Exeter.

While Coombs looks able enough to fill the bill as a three-letter man, another following in the same footsteps is Frederick R. Dawson of Saxonville. Dawson won a baseball letter a year ago when he held down the assignment in the sun field and also starred on the gridiron.

Dawson like Coombs is a senior with a bright future in track. Trainer Carroll is grooming him as a sprinter. He is exceptionally fast leaving mark and has enough reserve strength for a whirlwind finish. He has heard the call of the Hanoverians and will enter Dartmouth next Fall.

Inside Golf

Even when the two arms are made to feel as if they were working as one, it still is always advisable to watch that the right arm doesn't slide too far around the side, toward a position in back of the body. The right arm will shove in there very easily and when it does so the result is that the hands are too close to the head at the top of the back swing. The hands should be out from the head as far as they possibly can be at the top of the back swing—not in close toward the head. If they are in close perhaps the trouble results from the right arm going too much around the side as the club is swung back, making it too difficult for the left arm to keep straight since the right arm, in such a position, will set up a great resistance to the left arm.

Co-operation Needed to Save Football

By STED CHANDLER

"College undertakers are kept busy burying football coaches," declares one of the most venerable members of that group of society, Alonzo A. Stagg, who guides the destinies of the University of Chicago's football team.

And then, amid an array of startlingly honest reasons, we find him attaching a large amount of blame on newspaper sport writers. Well, yes and no. The writer feels like adding to the opening quotation: "Undertakers in general are kept just as busy burying sporting editors."

Mr. Stagg's figures are impressive and viewed in their proper light the short lives and quick deaths of gridiron mentors assume alarming proportions. But Mr. Stagg is dealing with a limited profession; a profession in which figures are easy to obtain and which data is easily establish. The country is not surfeited with football coaches, and furthermore, a large majority of them are more or less famous. Figures concerning fame are neither difficult to get nor difficult to read.

Consider on the other hand that large army of sport editors and sport writers whose mortality rate has no statistician. And then consider the reasons for their existence.

Newspapers are circulated to supply an urgent need, that we all know. But few of the lay gathering realize that in order to exist at all they must be sold and in order to be sold someone must buy them and in order to be bought they must supply a reason for sale.

It resolves into a case of the burden of blame falling upon the public, which is one of the places where Mr. Stagg willingly puts it. He advises a campaign to educate the alumni bodies of our various colleges and the public at large to the fact that "football is a game in which honor and nothing else is at stake."

Perfectly correct. But it is a rough and rugged proposition. Sport in America has become such a gargantua that it must be handled as such. It is not alone the bleating alumni and the bloodthirsty public which demands victory at almost any cost. The coaches themselves, perhaps largely in self-defense, have added bricks to the structure.

The newspapers MUST cater to public tastes or die a lonely death. And the public, speaking generally, will read no sob stuff about the ideals of the pastime and "honor being the only thing at stake." What the public wants is a victory and then another and then some more, but no defeat and no maudlin sentiment unless it is about the "sturdy young athlete in Harvard regalia dashing in a glorious race over the fleeting chalklines."

Writers who neglect these phases of football are the recipients of massive bunches of raspberries which arrive in droves from undergraduates, alumni, fans, experts, critics, and the coaches themselves. For every coach who is driven to the pillory by the lust for victory, there are a dozen sports editors driven into collapse in the mad fight to keep up the pace.

It is agreed that there is a lot of blame to be distributed among several groups and individuals, and it is agreed that the public et al should be "educated" to many things concerning football of which it is now in ignorance.

But it is a man-sized job which the sport writers can not handle alone nor can the coaches, nor any other single group.

It can be accomplished only by a concerted effort by all who are sincerely interested in the future of the game; by an effort which can weather the gaff of many reverses and which must fall back on those same qualities which are bound to perpetuate football as an institution worth all the sacrifice and trouble which may be necessary to save it.

Mrs. Schoemmel Swims Delaware

Trenton, N. J., Dec. 30 (A. P.)—The Delaware river, which General George Washington crossed 150 years ago to win the historic battle of Trenton, has been crossed again in a more up-to-date manner.

Mrs. Lottie Moore Schoemmel yesterday swam the icy waters of the river, which registered a temperature of 33 degrees above zero, as part of an elaborate Sesqui-Centennial celebration. In striking contrast was a pageant re-enacting Washington's historic crossing in which men clad in Continental army uniforms pushed a small boat across the stream through floating cakes of ice.

Mrs. Schoemmel completed her swim of 1,200 feet in 10½ minutes, and said she felt no ill effects from the cold.

Boston's Poor Must Not Be Pawns of Politics

Personal Machines Must Not Be Built Upon Misery; True Charity Does Not Have One Eye on the Ballot Box

Without examining deeply into all the merits of the controversy centering about the Boston Board of Overseers of Public Welfare, one object must be achieved before the matter is settled on a just basis.

Boston's poor must not be made the pawns of politics. No personal "machines" must be built upon misery.

It was bad enough that the city saw fit to make a saving at the expense of suffering. When the charge is made, as now, that municipal charity has one eye on the ballot box, safeguards must be erected swiftly and surely. Never again in this city must there be even the slightest basis for the bringing of such an accusation.

James J. Crowley and Judge Frank Leveroni, two of the deposed members of the Overseers of Public Welfare, fought against what they declare was an attempt to link the devious ways of politics with the dole given by the city to its dependents.

Mr. Crowley says that last October Mayor Nichols ordered the then Chairman of the Overseers, Simon E. Hecht, to cut the aid given the poor 25 per cent. When asked to put the order in writing, it is asserted that the Mayor refused on the ground that "it would look bad around election time."

Judge Leveroni says, "The Mayor's attempt to direct the election of a new chairman of the Overseers was, we felt, a move to establish political dictation in the board. We would not stand for it. The poor must be kept out of politics."

The poor we have always with us. Politics, among politicians, is a game that must be played 365 days a year. But the twain must forever be divorced in Boston. When this is brought about, it matters little who emerges victor among the squabbling Samaritans.

His Mind on His Job

Jockey or General, That COUNTS

GOOD POSITION, GOOD HANDS, GOOD JOCKEY

This little English jockey is going over the hurdles on the "first time round" at Hawthorn Hill, in England. This is about the jockey, not about the race. Who won doesn't matter.

Whoever won it, the bookmakers got the profit, and the fools that bet got the experience.

Some, of course, won; somebody wins in every race. And that somebody in the long run ALWAYS LOSES. Keep that in the back of your heads, young gentlemen that put your minds on a horse and jockey instead of on your jobs.

Notice that this jockey is successful BECAUSE HE IS THINKING ABOUT HIS TASK.

His job is to get that horse over the hurdles, bringing him in first, and above all he must NOT INTERFERE WITH HIM AS HE JUMPS.

See how well-placed this boy's hands are; not up in the air like a second-class rider, interfering with the horse's jump, but down on his neck, where they should be. He sits close in his seat, bent over to help the horse by not offering resistance to the wind. HIS MIND IS ON HIS JOB.

If he doesn't fall or break his neck, as jumping jockeys often do, he will live to be one of England's great jockeys.

Learn something from this, young gentlemen. Learn, for instance, that the gambler is a fool because he CAN'T WIN, and in his heart he knows it. Learn, also, that the way to go to the top is to keep your eye, your mind and your effort on what you want. In other words, ON YOUR JOB.

Attend to the job that you have now, and that attention will get you a better one when the time comes.

Underwood, of the Erie

He found it a mass of trackage. He left it a great railroad.

That was the history of Frederick D. Underwood's presidency of the Erie.

He retires after the longest term of service of any American railroad executive. But he leaves a good memory.

Freedom at a Price

"Let the man pay, for once," says Mussolini, and puts a tax on bachelors.

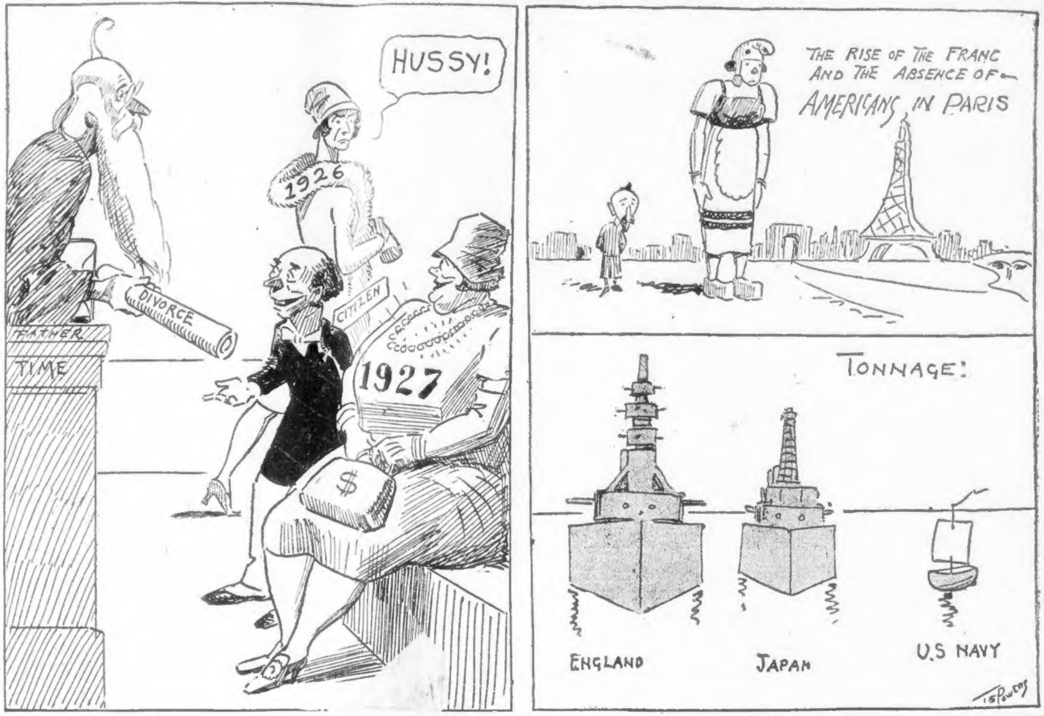
The wretches, not knowing what is good for them, will softly comment:

"Unfair, unjust, but worth it."

Bigger and Better

That's What They Are Saying About the New Year

By T. E. Powers



SPAN OF LIFE IS GETTING LONGER

By DR. FRANK CRANE

DR. IRVING FISHER, of Yale University, says that the average span of life shortly will reach one hundred. Another scientist says it will be about seventy-five.

There is no doubt that the average span of life is increasing. It used to be much smaller than it is.

Most of our illustrious forefathers were old men at fifty. Now a man at that age is just in the prime of life.

One of the modern problems is what to do with the flapper grandmother. She is being severely censored by her granddaughter for being too lively.

Nowadays a woman often "steps out" after she has passed the age of sixty.

One of the causes of the increase of the average span is the prevention of disease due to researches by the use of the microscope, and by the efforts of medical men.

The ravages of yellow fever have been assuaged. Cholera and malaria have been mitigated, and the former plagues that used to rage in cities have been done away with.

It has been due largely to the increase in hygienic conditions in modern cities.

Somebody called medievalism "civilization upon a dung heap." One of the things that strikes/a traveler is the superior cleanliness of American cities and the attention they give to matters of sanitation.

If people can be taught to live in hygienic surroundings, have plenty of exercise and sunshine and eat proper food, there is no doubt they will live longer.

So far, bright's disease, hardening of the arteries and pernicious anemia, not to mention other diseases, have baffled the efforts of science. A new prevention of diphtheria, and one for measles, have been announced as probabilities.

It might be mentioned here that much of the increase in the average span of human life has been due to the efforts of insurance companies.

What Do You Know?

Give your friends who know it all a try-out on these questions. Find the correct answers.

1. A train that usually arrives at half-past two was thirty-eight minutes late. When did it arrive?
2. If a man gets $1.50 a day, what will he be paid for 5½ days' work?
3. What is 16 2-3 per cent. of $8.40?

Choose the one correct answer:

4. A barnacle is a plant—animal—insect—tree.
5. Heat causes gases to liquify—oxidize—contract—expand.
6. Absinthe is a liquor colored white—red—yellow—green.
7. Jamaica belongs to France—Spain—Great Britain—Portugal
8. Johann Kepler was noted as a musician—astronomer—artist—writer

Complete these familiar quotations:

9. "Her voice was ever soft,
Gentle and low—an excellent thing in ——." Shakespeare.
10. "Be good, sweet maid, and let who will be ——." Charles Kingsley.
11. "Can the Ethiopian change his ——, or the leopard his spots?" Old Testament.
12. "Remember that —— is money." Benjamin Franklin.

See tomorrow's paper to verify your answers.

Answers to yesterday's test:

1, Balboa; 2, Edwin Abbey; 3, Aesop; 4, Switzerland; 5, Pacific Ocean; 6, India; 7, Germany; 8, Spain; 9, tawdry; 10, efficient; 11, indifference; 12, holy; 13, aging; 14, insipid; 15, transitory.

IT'S A BOY

"You bet your life there's a Santa Claus," says JOHN P. ENGLERT, superintendent of Public Buildings. "And he sure did stop at my house."

"Well, you don't have to tell the world about it; you're not the only one Santa paid a visit to," exclaimed one of his friends.

"I want to tell the world about this present," screeched JOHNNIE. "It's a boy; 8 pounds. Both mother and baby doing fine. Have a cigar."

"What's the baby's name," he was asked.

"Gosh, I don't know yet, but if my wife agrees with me we might name it 'FIN COM' ENGLERT."

Few men in civil life can best ALDERMAN WILLIAM M. NOONE of WEST NEWTON when it comes to matters concerning the war veteran. BILL is a wounded veteran, having run afoul of some German ammunition while serving with Battery B, 101st Field Artillery, 26th DIVISION and knows what it means to be in a hospital. He has handled hundreds of compensation claims, insurance inquiries and other veterans' troubles since the war and is keenly posted on all legislation that the NEWTON doughboys inquire about. He is liaison officer between NEWTON LEGION and the RED CROSS.

JUST LIKE JOB

MOTORCYCLE OFFICER LARRY O'DONNELL of NEWTON, who recently got plenty of publicity by tracing a society girl motor-law offender through the society columns, has, many times, displayed the same type of patience that resulted in the arrest of this girl. One cold, wintry morning a WEST NEWTON citizen's machine broke down. With the patience of Job, LARRY worked on the balky gears for a half an hour until he finally located and adjusted the trouble. He made one undying friend that night.

PERFECT SHOOTING

An auto came into Memorial Square, DEDHAM, and the driver, in trying to get out of the car tracks skidded and came up against the dummy policeman, sending it a foot forward. The driver went to tell his story to PATROLMAN EDWARD FLANNAGAN, expecting to receive a calldown. But Officer Flannagan told the driver to get into his machine, turn around and try and strike the beacon again and set it back in place. This the driver accomplished the first shot.

Speaking of genial dispositions, if there is any to better the laughing JIMMY McNAMARA, Brookline swimming coach and mentor of hundreds of webfeet each year, we should like to see them. And JIMMY'S formula for a happy disposition is, "The kids. They're great to work with."

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

"I MIGHT as well be married to a wooden man,' cries Hortense. "He can't talk to me about a thing in the world except his old shop or golf or fishing. Unless we have company, we go through dinner like two dummies—never saying a word. After dinner he takes his paper and pipe and there's not a word out of him all evening. That has been our life for five years, and I think I will go mad if it lasts a month longer."

Then Hortense proceeds to tell how she has always longed for a man who would speak "her own language." Someone with whom she could discuss the latest book, the newest play or the current political problem. Someone who would Understand Her Innermost Feelings, who would be able to analyze her moods and interpret her desires. Someone whose very silence would be eloquent—a real "complement to her soul."

Such is the lover of whom Hortense has dreamed since she was a little girl. With such a lover, and only with such a lover, could True Marriage be found. And she thought that Fate had sent her that lover when she met Bob Green in her senior year at college. Bob, to be sure, wasn't very long on discussion. But there was something about his silence that made her very, very sure that their spirits were attuned. So the week after graduation they were married. And for about three months Hortense went about in a rosy haze, imagining that she had found a Soul Mate. Then she came to earth with a dull, sickening thud and realized that her soul was as unmated as ever.

He Never Fussed

Bob was good to her. He was gentle and friendly and considerate. He provided three meals a day and a comfortable home. He never fussed or made unreasonable demands. And he was radiantly contented with his lot as her husband. But she wasn't radiantly contented with her lot as his wife! For marriage had left her just as it had found her, as far as her mind and soul were concerned. Bob was a good, kind, reliable man but he "couldn't understand her" nor did he make any effort to do so.

SHE WAS LIVING WITH A STRANGER!

Now, after five years, she feels that she "can't stand it any longer." She is sure that "marriage should mean something more than living with a stranger." And she has found—as they always do find—Someone Who Does Understand Her. A Wonderful Man Who Speaks Her Language. They can discuss plays and books and music and art and their own longings and rebellions. And oh, the bliss of being en rapport with another soul!

She has been perfectly faithful to Bob—so far. There hasn't been a word of love between them. But don't I think she has a right to take her happiness now that she has found it? Surely Bob won't miss her, since they have meant so little to each other. And as for the children—well, that can be arranged.

Hortense's plight isn't rare or extraordinary. Contrary to popular theory, neither lust nor cruelty nor lack of support causes the average divorce. It's the joyful discovery of Someone Who Understands that precipitates the wreck. And, let it be said in all fairness, the Misunderstood One is usually perfectly sincere in thinking that love without understanding is a desecration of the name.

Fail to Find Bliss

But having picked Soul Mate No. 2, do they find the anticipated bliss?

They do not.

For oddly enough, marriage seems to bust this en rapport business into smithereens.

I DON'T GET JA!
YOU NEVER UNDERSTAND ME!
DO TWO HEARTS EVER BEAT AS ONE? NEVER!
E.R.

Take Hortense for example—and Hortense is typical of a very large number of intelligent, discontented American wives. Hortense, born in the midst of the Babbits, feels that she has found one whose soul is attuned to her own. But how long will it stay attuned? Hardly a fortnight after marriage. Then all this delicious intimacy will vanish like the rabbit in a magician's hat. They will still be mutually interested in books, plays and soul throbs. But will they discuss these things upon a balcony beneath a slender moon? They will not. They'll be so bored with each other's opinions that they'll ask the Smiths over for a little bridge.

Then aren't there sensitive souls who understand the dreams and desires of other souls? Sure there are. And one invariably meets one of them after being married to a Strange, Silent Man for five years. And, maybe, unless you knock on wood, you succeed in marrying it. But does it continue to understand you after marriage?

Is this a sneer at love or a slam at marriage?

It is neither.

It's merely a gentle hint that there may, after all, be more important things in life than Being Understood.

Crow Nest of Astronomy

By Garrett P. Serviss

SHAKESPEARE'S "ship's boy on the high and giddy mast,' might be likened to the modern astronomer in his mountain observatory.

The mariner climbs high to see farther; the astronomer to see better. The first overcomes the rotundity of the earth's surface; the second eliminates the density of the earth's atmosphede. High above sea level, in quiet climates, the air is not only light and clear, but what is not less important, steady.

Some of the huge telescopes that now survey and photograph the heavens from mountain tops would, if brought down where the air is dense, misty, dust-laden and afflicted with cyclonitis, become half blinded giants.

So all the world must watch with increasing interest the efforts of Assam Dina to make Europe's loftiest Alp, Mont Blanc, the permanent home of a great observatory.

Mr. Dina's plan of an air route supply line, keeping the high-perched observatory amidst its shackles of eternal ice in unbroken communication with the lower world, is so boldly up-to-date that it alone suffices to attract universal atteation.

So far, beginning last Summer, the airplanes carrying supplies for the observatory, which is situated on the "Bosses du Dromadaire," near the apex of the great white peak, have simply flown low over the mountain and dropped their packages on the vast snowfields, but Mr. Dina plans to have a landing place on the ice constructed next year.

This particular observatory, which Mr. Dina is enlarging and re-equipping, was founded many years ago by M. Vallot for meteorological purposes, and upon his death M. Vallot bequeathed it to its present owner.

Formerly there was an astronomical observatory on the main summit of the mountain, founded by M. Janssen. I visited it in 1895, when its telescope was being carried up the peak in sections, by mountain guides and porters.

The building, of wood and iron, had its supports driven deep into the solid ice that crowns the summit—rock being unreachable—and it was then believed that it might remain there immovable.

But gravitation inexorably pulls down mountains and even pulls off their caps, so that not many years had elapsed before it was found that the observatory with its icy base was slowly creeping down the Chamouny slope.

Two or three years ago a photograph was made of the wreck of the building on its inevitable way toward the verge of the tremendous avalanche wall that encloses the "Grand Plateau," a vast basin of snow and ice, lying some 2,000 feet below the summit dome.

I understand that there is no intention to renew the attempt to establish an observatory on the icy dome of the true top. The Vallot buildings are founded on projecting rock masses, and are therefore immune to danger except from storms.

But while no very large telescope for astronomical purposes is to be erected on Mont Blanc, it is Mr. Dina's intention to put one of the largest and most powerful telescopes in existence on the long ridge of Mont Saleve, which all visitors to Geneva will remember.
